RAID SPURS INVASION PLANS

NELSON SET TO FORESTALL OUTPUT CUT

Expected To Order Issuing of 'Quickie' Priority Ratings on Materials.

SAYS HE'LL GET TOUGH

Production Chief Discharges Engineer in First Speed-Up Move.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Prompt action to forestall any war production shutdowns due to lack of materials appeared imminent today in consequence of Donald M. Nelson's newly enunciated "get tough" policy.

The production chief was expected to give his regional directors throughout the country power to issue "quickie" priority ratings to provide needed small quantities of materials or parts

Thus holders of war contracts threatened with stoppage or curtailment of output because of an interruption in the flow of materials or a breakdown of machinery, readily could obtain materials needed to keep going.

Informed officials who requested that they not be quoted by name said such a plan, if adopted, undoubtedly would put strict limits on the amount of materials at the disposal of regional officers.

Eighteen officials of AFL and CIO metal-fabricating unions were invited by the war production board to a conference here Monday at which raw material shortages will be discussed.

The Economic Outlook, published by the CIO, said shortages due to inefficient management by the steel industry had caused numerous plants to shut down

Nelson made it clear yesterday he had taken his gloves off for a finish fight on the question of his administration of the war effort.

Swiftly attacking one internal problem—the "leak" of confidential WPB reports—Nelson gave immediate effect to his warning that heads would fall by dismissing a $5,600 WPB employe.

"He's fired," Nelson said flatly

Stephen E Fitzgerald, head of WPB's information division, identified the dismissed man as Frederick I. Libbey, an engineering consultant. Libbey, the spokesman said, discussed contents of a confidential report with a newspaper reporter.

The report, which Libbey was drafting, covered operations of the WPB iron and steel branch, and the newspaper story said it accused the branch of operational waste and inefficiency.

"From now on any one who crosses my path is going to have his head taken off," Nelson said

DIES IN CRASH

Former Mansfield Youth Killed as Bomber Falls in Pacific.

Word was received today of the death of a former Mansfield youth, killed last Thursday when the bomber plane which he and three companions were flying crashed into the Pacific ocean, eight miles off shore from San Diego, Calif. No details on the accident were received.

The youth was Pvt. Junior Cook, 21, son of Mrs. Millicent Cook of Los Angeles, Calif. Both Mrs. Cook and her son formerly resided in the city. They moved to the west coast six years ago.

Only one of the bodies from the bomber crew was recovered and it was not that of Private Cook. Survivors here include his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hillman, 51 Chestnut street, and four cousins.

MEETS WILLKIE

FDR Expected to Discuss War Front Tour With Willkie.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt today scheduled a luncheon appointment at the White House with Wendell Willkie apparently to discuss further details of Willkie's proposed trip to European battlefronts as a private observer.

Willkie, after a recent White House conference with the president, disclosed that he is contemplating such a tour, and said he may have some work to do for the president.

Figures and Scenes In Huge United Nations Commando Raid

Councilmen, in Caucus, Agree To 2,500-Foot Slag Strip at Air Field.

UTILIZE $5,000 FUND

Harrington Says Plan Would Permit Airport to Handle All Types of Planes.

Construction of a new slag-filled runway which will become a permanent adjunct of Mansfield's municipal airport was agreed upon by city council in caucus session last night.

The new course will be 2,500 feet long and 50 feet wide and, in the opinion of councilmen, can be constructed with funds still available from a $5,000 appropriation voted in June, if airport officials are successful in enlisting additional labor and mechanical assistance

According to James R. Harrington, port manager, this constitutes the first permanent development since 1934 and will accommodate the landing and departure of practically any type of plane. In hoped-for port expansion, Harrington said, hard-surface runways likely will be installed but the new course can be utilized as a taxi-strip in reaching take-off positions.

Wednesday night's caucus was called following informal group discussion of airport needs with a view of determining the collective attitude of the body.

Unanimous agreement to proceed with port plans as far as available funds permit was reported. It also was indicated that council members are becoming more "air-minded" in their consideration of financial needs for the development and maintenance of aviation facilities.

Under the June appropriation a maintenance crew was appointed by Mayor W. J Locke These men recently were laid off by Service Director Fred B Wolff.

Constant need of such a crew was stressed by Harrington who explained that war conditions results in many huge ships landing here, each gouging huge ruts in runways In addition, he said expansion of the civilian aeronautics training program demands good runways at all times.

COAST DIMMED

Nine Million Affected By Army Order in West.

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Nine million residents of the Pacific coast, from Mexico to Canada and embracing 102,000 square miles of the United States mainland, today emerged from their first experience with an army-imposed dimout.

At precisely midnight last night the army's zone of restricted lighting — stretching from San Ysidro on the Mexican border to Blaine on the Canadian border and inland as far as 150 miles in some places—went into effect.

Neon signs, theater marquees, illuminated billboards, floodlights and other sources of illumination which might cause a glare against which Axis submarines could spot coastwise shipping and other targets are illegal from now on.

Scrap Donations Start, Collection Calls Beginning

The scrap pile in the bins at Park avenue and Central park was growing today and calls were beginning to come in to county civilian defense headquarters as the city War Production Board scrap campaign went into the second day in in Mansfield.

While city residents can put their scrap in the bins at the park or sell it to junk dealers, Carl Stough, county salvage chairman, said trucks would not begin a systematic collection of junk materials until next Monday.

He urged persons with scrap to sell or donate to call civilian

Allied Leaders Meet to Study Dieppe Results

Berlin Reports 400 Nazi Casualties In Commando Attack; Last of Raid Troops Return to England With German Prisoners.

(By United Press)

LONDON—A conclave of high leaders of the British, American and Canadian fighting forces was summoned less than 24 hours after the successful Dieppe attack, it was learned today, to study application of the commando tactics to the eventual invasion of Europe.

Putting all emphasis upon speed, it was learned that the chiefs of the British army, navy and Royal Air Force already have received preliminary reports on methods employed in the hard-hitting assault.

The reports, it was said, are being examined with care in collaboration with American and Canadian officers. Despite the fact that only a few hours have elapsed since fighting ceased on the beaches of Dieppe a fairly complete picture of the operation was said to be available.

Gaps in available information will be filled in later, it was understood, including whatever data can be obtained from German prisoners, including some wounded, who have arrived at a south coast port.

(The German radio, quoting a high command communique, reported Nazi casualties in the Dieppe engagement were 400 killed and wounded.)

Lord Louis Mountbatten, commander-in-chief of combined operations, was receiving reports from his commando lieutenants as rapidly as they could be transcribed.

Throughout the night United States Rangers, Canadian shock troops, British commandos and Fighting French volunteers streamed back across the English channel and on through cheering English country towns and villages to their bases.

The last of the Allied troops, most of them seriously wounded, arrived in mid-morning under an umbrella of Spitfire and Hurricane planes which streaked a broad patch across the 60-mile stretch of the channel to Dieppe above the warships and transports.

With them came German prisoners.

A United Press correspondent saw one sorry group of five prisoners in drab gray-green uniforms and thin knee-boots, their knees shaking in fear that they were about to be executed summarily.

British surgeons treated a German non-commissioned officer who had suffered a bad head wound.

One prisoner apparently had been captured in a dugout or billet. He wore one house slipper. The other foot was bare.

Among the prisoners who arrived today from Dieppe was a Dutchman. It was reported that he had been impressed into the German army and had surrendered at the first chance.

All through the night British planes ranged over enemy occupied territory and watched over the power-driven invasion barges,

ATTACK: Reds Take Initiative Along 400 Miles of War Front

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—The Red army has taken the initiative in battles developing on four key central Russian fronts along the 400 miles from Bryansk to Lake Ilmen while holding doggedly before Stalingrad and in the Caucasus, battlefront dispatches reported today.

Centers of the Russian attack were listed as the Bryansk front, 210 miles southwest of Moscow; the salient 130 miles west of Moscow in the Vyazma area, the Kalanin-Rzhev salient, 130 miles northwest of the capital, and the Lake Ilmen front south of Leningrad.

(This was the first specific mention of Red army offensives on these fronts in Russian dispatches, although German communiques for days have told of desperate resistance there by Nazi forces hurled onto the defensive by strong Soviet attacks.)

No complete details of the central campaigns were given, but the Russians said they had taken a heavy toll of garrison forces left to man the central and northern battleline while the Nazis massed their greatest strength for the Don bend and Caucasus offensive.

The Russians apparently were striking out along this whole line in a carefully-timed series of sharp assaults.

In the south, where the Germans concentrated ever-reinforced troop and air strength, the Russians said some Axis troops had forced a crossing in the elbow of the Don in their drive upon Stalingrad, but were "completely wiped out" on the east bank.

While Red army men on the steppes between the Don and the Volga thus were reported to have accounted for Nazi bridgeheads, Russians withdrew again in the battle of the western Caucasus

BLOW: Allied Bombers Strike Jap Warships In South Pacific

(By Associated Press)

GENERAL M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia —Allied bombers struck a new blow in support of United States Marines fighting to dislodge the Japs from the Solomon islands by blasting at enemy warships almost 400 miles north of the battle area, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The communique disclosing the attack also announced loss of the 10,000-ton Australian cruiser Canberra in the first stages of the Solomon islands battle.

Australian authorities listed casualties aboard the Canberra—which carred 816 men—as 84 dead and 109 wounded. Among the fatalities were the commander, Capt. Frank Getting of Sydney, and Ensign J. W. Vance of the United States navy.

The announcement concerning the aerial assault on Jap naval units yesterday said merely that Allied heavy bombers had attacked enemy warships near Faisi—a small island near Bougainville at the northern tip of the Solomons —with unknown result, and that all the raiders had returned safely.

The announcement was of particular interest, however, for it constituted the first official mention of operations against Jap naval units in the Solomon island area since the battle in which the Canberra was lost almost two weeks ago.

In addition to the attack on the enemy naval units, Allied bombers made a low attitude raid yesterday on a Jap-occupied town in Timor, far to the northwest of Australia.

RIO DE JANEIRO—(AP)—The coastal steamer Jacy was sunk by a submarine yesterday, the sixth Brazilian ship so destroyed in recent days. It was sent to the bottom a few miles off the northeast coast after all aboard were ordered off in lifeboats.

(By Associated Press)

RIO DE JANEIRO — The sinking of five Brazilian coastal ships recently, which has brought Brazil into undeclared conflict with the Axis, was the result of "brazen operations of Nazi spies who informed on planned troop movements," a high official of the government navigation line asserted today.

While Brazilian authorities indicated this nation's intention of battling Axis aggression but refraining from an outright declaration of war, a general roundup of spy suspects was pressed in coastal cities.

Among those held was Wilhelm Koenig, head of the German tourist bureau in Brazil and regarded as one of the most

Ruling Transfers 300 County Men From 1-B to 1-A Class

Nearly 300 Richland county selective service registrants who have been deferred because of physical defects were made available for army duty today by an order from national draft headquarters which abolishes the 1-B classification.

With this additional reservoir of men to fill their calls, clerks of the county's three selective service boards said they would have enough single men and those married since last Dec. 8 to meet their quotas until Nov. 1 unless the October call is unusually heavy.

All local draft boards were ordered today to begin re-classifying their 1-B men into the 1-A group, making them available for immediate army call. The order affects registrants who have failed to pass previous physical examinations because of defective vision and hearing, minor heart ailments, hernia, and other defects that can be remedied by surgery or treatment.

Not all of the 1-B registrants are expected to be accepted for army duty, however, since a few of them with serious physical defects will be re-classified in the 4-F group as totally unfit for any type of military service, clerks said

The I N. S. writer, who returned to London from New York last December as a war correspondent, will be hospitalized for removal of the shrapnel from his chest.

Mansfielder In Bomber Crew That Blasted German Bases

Sitting in one of the bombers which blasted Rouen, France, last Monday night was a Mansfield youth, the second reported to have taken part in air raids against Nazi-held bases in occupied Europe.

He is Second Lieut. James T. Watson, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tod Watson, 63 Dawson avenue, and he was accompanying seven other Ohioans who participated in the first all-American bombing raid.

Watson, acting as a navigator, plotted the course of one of the flying fortresses which left the railway yards at Rouen covered by "a great pall of smoke and sand" in what has been described as the "real start of an ever-increasing American bombing offensive."

Another Mansfield flier, Capt. William C. Odell, 27, piloted one of

BAG ELEVEN ON SPEED CHARGES

Traffic Squad Stages 'Field Day' Over Night; Watches 40-Mile Driving.

Without specific instructions from Traffic Commissioner Friend C. Boals, Mansfield motorcycle patrolmen last night launched a crusade against speeding, in keeping with Gov. John W. Bricker's recent edict asking a 40-mile limit.

In the individually-developed "field day" the night's bag was 11 alleged speeders, the patrolmen making most of their arrests in the vicinity of park entrances or on routes leading to parks.

"I didn't specifically order such a drive but I surely will not issue any orders to hamper such activity on the part of my force," Boals declared today.

Those arrested were Oliver Crofutt, 160 Lewis avenue; Robert Kiamy, 318 Longview avenue, Ira D. Lester, 645 Sherman avenue, Sidney Marshall, 523 Liberty street, D J. Ryland, Shelby; Virgil H. Durbin, 565 Springmill street, Maynard S. Baith, 586 South Diamond street, Robert Sawyer, Mansfield, R. D 3, Norris Haires and Harvey L Sauder, both Mansfield R. D. 5, and Frankin A. Newton, taxi driver charged with passing another car at 47 miles an hour at Springmill and Prescott streets.

The accused drivers were cited to appear in traffic court Saturday when Municipal Judge G E. Kalbfleisch will consider their cases.

Bob Gutwein, Wyoming, Ohio posted bond of $16 30 and waived hearing following his arrest by state highway patrolmen for speeding on route 42.

TWO-THIRDS OF NATION'S CITIES SPENDING MORE

Wartime Budget Increases Shown as Taxes Drop Off.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — War-time budget increases in 1942 have increased the cost of government in two-thirds of the nation's cities, but new sources of income have not kept pace with the rising costs, according to a survey by the International City Managers' association.

The survey, conducted in 185 cities in 32 states, reveals that 62 per cent of the cities will spend more this year than in 1941, 30 per cent will spend less and 8 per cent will spend the same.

Cities engaged in heavy war production, the erport said, show an increase in population from 11 to 20 per cent and anticipate that the rising population may boost revenues from water and electric utilities.

Cut Relief Funds.

Increased expenditures in more than one-third of the cities were mainly for higher wages and the expansion of activities to meet the demands of additional population.

Among 34 cities over 25,000 reporting population increases were Dayton, O.; Columbus, Ga.; Fort Worth and Amarillo, Tex.; Glendale and Berkeley, Cal.; and Schenectady, N. Y.

While cities reporting in the survey are forced to increase expenditures for some purposes, many are economizing on relief and welfare spending, street maintenance, building inspection, parks and recreation.

Less From Gas Taxes.

Dallas, Tex., according to the survey, is eliminating construction activities and saving $2,000 on street lighting under the war saving time. The city has set up a reserve fund of $130,000 in anticipation of any emergency.

The survey declared that four cities over 100,000 are spending less this year than last—Dallas, Miami, Knoxville and Yonkers, N. Y. Other cities reducing costs are Bakersfield and Pasadena, Cal.; Fort Collins, Col.; Coral Gables, Fla., Roanoke, Va.; and Kenosha, Wis.

Of 103 cities raising their budgets this year, 75 reported they did not anticipate a reduction in municipal revenue from taxes, but 70 of them look for reduction in non-tax revenues. The latter include reductions in state gas and motor vehicle license taxes, parking meter revenues, building permit fees and business license fees.

The cities whose 1942 expenditures are at 1941 levels are all under 25,000 population.

RAID SPEEDS UP INVASION PLANS AMONG ALLIES

Leaders Meet to Study Dieppe Attack Results as Last of Troops Return.

warships and other vessels which came streaming back after the nine-hour attack that ended just six minutes behind schedule.

There was a furious burst of gunfire before dawn in the Calais area 85 miles north of Dieppe.

Soon after dawn, squadron after squadron of Spitfires raced over to Dieppe to cover the last of the men who had made the first great raid on the enemy-held coast and had put fear into the hearts of the German occupying forces from France to Norway.

Long hospital trains waited at casualty clearing stations along the south coast to take the last of the seriously wounded to base hospitals.

The Allied forces had left hundreds of their stoic wounded at the field dressing stations at disembarkation points.

They left the bodies of their dead, mingled with the bodies of many more German dead and the wreckage of nine hours of concentrated destruction.

They brought back German prisoners for the intelligence to question, a clear and complete picture of the enemy defenses on the most strongly fortified stretch of the French coast and the knowledge that, under an umbrella of British and American planes, they can land in Europe at will.

It may be assumed that as the result of this dress rehearsal for a full scale invasion, the entire formidable German army in western Europe will be forced on a 24-hour-a-day alert from now on, from the Brest peninsula to Narvik on the Norwegian Arctic coast 1,800 miles to the north.

Military quarters, assessing the results of the raid they regard as a complete and inspiring success, said:

1—It proved that a second front can be opened in the west at a price which may be calculated in advance.

2—To open it while half-ready would be suicidal.

3—The raid was effected with the greatest concentration of men, weapons and airplanes ever directed against an objective of such size.

4—There will be more, and even bigger raids before the second front comes.

5—The new raids will test the ability of shock forces to consolidate and expand a bridgehead of the kind formed yesterday.

6—Where companies of 300 men engaged the Germans at Dieppe, divisions of 15,000 men will be needed for the second front.

7—Yesterday's raid cost the Germans up to one-third of their fighter plane strength in western Europe. 91 planes certainly destroyed and another 100 damaged, many so severely they undoubtedly crashed, against 98 Allied planes of whose pilots 30 were saved.

8—The Allied plane forces dominated the air. On the present scale they probably could not do so if the second front were opened in the north, on the relatively thinly held Norwegian coast.

9—The Germans will have to bring fighter planes to the west at once and they may have to reinforce their invasion coast armies.

Twenty-three United States army flying fortresses had made probably by far the heaviest attack ever concentrated against a single air base when, in co-operation with the Allied raiding troops they bombed Abbeville yesterday.

It was at Abbeville, 35 miles up the coast from Dieppe, that the Germans broke through to the coast after Sedan in 1940.

It was now possibly the most heavily defended point on the invasion coast and has been a graveyard for Allied planes.

Direct bomb hits, made possible by the best bomb sights in the world, were scored on the airdrome runways, planes dispersal areas, barracks and headquarters buildings.

Any doubt that in yesterday's wild air battle, which at its climax covered an area 125 miles long from the Isle of Wight to Boulogne and 60 miles deep, the Germans took a heavy blow was ended when the air and home security ministers in their joint communique today reported that not a single German plane had come over the British Isles during the night.

Not since Aug. 3, 16 days ago, had the Germans failed to make their nightly vengeance raids.

Describe Raid As 'Hotter Than Hell'

ON A CLIFFTOP ON THE ENGLISH SOUTH COAST — (U.P.) —Throughout the night United States Rangers, Canadians, British Commandos and fighting French have been streaming back to England and going on by truck and bus to their bases, sleeping like dead men in their exhaustion.

At 4:30 p. m. yesterday the first invasion convoy, heavily escorted by Spitfire fighter planes, began passing a south coast port on the way home, under a heavy attack by German bombers.

They were greeted by the crash of bombs on the coast, the thunder of anti-aircraft guns and the chatter of machine guns up above the clouds where the Germans attacked. They were in beautiful naval formation, the landing barges escorted by destroyers and an umbrella of darting fighter planes overhead.

The remains of black, green and yellow paint were on the faces of the troops as they disembarked. The Commandos all wore the peaked, head-fitting helmets of the type called after Balaclava where the British cavalry rode into Russian guns in the Crimean war. Most of them wore sand shoes, some wore army boots. One man walked bare-foot, his boots in his hand.

They were grimy and tired as they limped to the trucks and buses waiting for them. Each had a deflated life belt on his chest. Uniforms of many were in tatters. Some had the legs of their trousers torn off at the knee. But they still carried their arms and equipment and they were happy.

An American Ranger was standing at a roadside. A Ranger lieutenant called to him: "What do you think of it?"

"Sir, I liked it better than hell, and it was a damned sight hotter."

A French-Canadian waved a field gray German tunic.

"What happened to the guy who owned it?" asked a soldier standing at a curbside.

"I finish him," the Canadian grinned.

(Here one section of the dispatch was deleted by the censors.)

"A bullet went clean through the first man," one said. "We scooted over the fields and by that time the Germans had opened fire all along the cliffs. Our job was to deal with patrols and we did just that."

A Commando who had been on his third raid said:

"It was the hottest thing I've ever been in."

Nazis Give Version Of Commando Raid

BERLIN — (German broadcast recorded by United Press in New York)—The German high command reported in a communique today that enemy troops were landed along a 15½-mile front at Dieppe yesterday from a fleet of 35 transports and 300 to 400 landing barges.

The landing vessels were said to have been protected by a large force of cruisers, destroyers and patrol boats of which 13 warships and transports were sunk in a predawn naval battle off Dieppe.

Listed as sunk were four British destroyers, two torpedo boats and seven transports while four cruisers, four destroyers and five transports were said to have been damaged.

German military quarters said that 1,500 prisoners were held when the attack ended at 2:30 p. m. yesterday (8:30 p. m. EWT.)

Report Hand-to-Hand Fights At Dieppe

VICHY—(AP)—Stories of hand-to-hand combats in the streets of flaming Dieppe under a rain of shells from British artillery were told today in excited telephonic information which got through to Vichy from the scene of yesterday's battle.

Rough civilian estimates placed the number of Allied raiders at about 10,000, mostly Canadians, landed in 300 to 400 small boats and tank scows on the fortified beaches while 13 British warships hurled shells into the German coastal defenses.

French nurses and firemen dealt with casualties and damage while the battle raged, said the reports reaching here.

The landing boats came in a huge wave along some 12½ miles of the coast. Beaching parties of Canadians, American Rangers, De Gaulle French and British fought through barbed wire entanglements on shore and drove the Germans back into the low part of Dieppe some distance away, the reports continued.

The raiders forced an entry into the city and occupied part of the lower quarter while the tanks, held back by anti-tank barriers which there was no time to destroy, aided by pouring cannon fire into the German ranks.

The city's population was reported calm and orderly while the raiders and the Germans fought in the streets.

First offhand estimates said about 30 civilians were killed.

The Dieppe reports said the Allied troops withdrew about 3.30 p. m.

Maintaining a rear-guard fire, they reached the beach head which had been held since the landing.

Then with a shout they left together aboard the motor scows which had brought them.

New Violence Flares In India

BOMBAY—(INS)—New violence flared today in the Madras presidency when mobs supporting the All-India Congress party demand for withdrawal of British rule attacked police station and looted homes.

A communique issued by the Madras government said that a mob of 3,000 had attacked a police station in the Godavari district and looted nearby homes.

The local treasury of the Rammad district was looted by 5,000 demonstrators and divisional offices and a local prison were burned.

Police at Lathi charged and opened fire on angry mobs.

Casualties resulting from the new outbreak were not reported immediately.

FORM COMPANY

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — An army company of 215 Ohio mechanics and technicians to serve in combat duty will be recruited by the state highway department, Highway Director Hal G. Sours announced today.

The company, when organized, will serve to maintain and repair heavy combat equipment. The company will include seven officers and about 125 non-commissioned specialists.

Here's Scrap Bin---Let's Fill It!

The two scrap bins at the west side of Central park offered Mansfielders a challenge today. As this picture shows, a few pieces of scrap metal and rubber already had been dropped in one of the bins today, but both bins must be filled to show that Mansfield is 100 per cent behind the government's campaign for needed scrap for the war program. Shown in the above photo are some of the articles that can be used by Uncle Sam's war machines. They include old toys, auto jacks, wash boilers, auto parts, lawn mowers, tires, tubes, garden hose, hot water bottles, and heavy metal kitchen utensils.

Mansfielder In Bomber Crew Which Blasted German Bases

six speedy attack-bombers that raided German airdromes in the Nazi-occupied Netherlands on July 4. Odell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emery A. Odell, 246 Westbrook avenue, was one of four pilots returning planes safely to his English base.

Lieut. Watson entered the army air corps last fall. He left Mansfield Oct. 6 and was stationed first at Albany, Ga., and later at Sarasota, Fla. He was formerly employed at the Ohio Brass company plant.

His mother was shocked, at first, and then "proud and glad" to learn that her son had taken part in the Rouen raid. She received a letter from him dated Aug. 4 but it contained only a suggestion of action.

The only passage in his letter which gave an indication of the work ahead was "I'm seeing history being made and having at least a small part in making it."

Lieut. Watson also sent a resent cable to his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Watson of Utica, in which he assured her that he was "in good health."

"I'm glad to know that he's all right and that he's able to do something to help win the war," said his mother. "In one of his recent letters, he said 'we all need a rude awakening as to the seriousness of the war'."

Watson's wife, reached at the home of her parents in Utica, where she went to stay after he joined the air corps, said she was "happy" that all of the bombers returned safely.

Watson married the former Beatrice Law on Aug. 15, 1941, just two months before entering the service. He saw her and their four-months-old daughter, Alys Marie, in June, just before he embarked for England.

Lieut. Watson attended Amity schools and later was graduated from Kenyon college.

Other Ohioans taking part in the Rouen raid were Lieutenants William L. Heckman of Wapakoneta, and Donald A. Walters of Painesville, and Sergeants Warren J. Ewing of North Baltimore; John J. Drougas of Zanesville; Henry Wojciechowski of Cleveland and Alvin J. Kulakoski of Toledo.

When she heard of the Monday night raid, Lieut. Walter's bride was so sure he was among the raiders that she celebrated even before receiving confirmation.

She baked a cake at her Maple Heights home Tuesday night, letter "B-17" on the icing, and invited friends to her home.

Sergeant Wojciechowski's sister, Catherine, asserted: "I sort of thought he was on that raid. He was a very good gunner. The men in his outfit called him 'Machinegunski.'"

Sergeant Drougas quit his job as a night club bartender to enlist in the air corps in May 1941. He was a radio technical school graduate. His father, cook in a Zanesville restaurant, came from Greece only a few years ago.

Sergeant Kulakoski, 20, entered the army a year ago after completing his freshman year at the University of Toledo. He is a radio operator.

Sergeant Ewin, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loy Ewing, helped his mother operate a small restaurant near North Baltimore before enlisting last December.

Lieut. Heckman, 26, left law school at Ohio State university to enlist in the air corps two years ago.

Brazil Speeds Arrests, Chile Sends Protests to Nazis Over Attacks.

Important Nazi operators in Brazil.

"Brazilians will know how to fight decisively and with or without arms will know how to die for Brazil," Air Minister Joaquim Salgado told an audience clamoring for action even as the nation's warships and planes combed the sea for raiders which have sunk five ships in recent days with a possible loss of more than 600 lives.

Apparently representative of the general attitude was the statement of the well-informed editor J. S. Maciel, jr., who said that war actually exists already and there is no need of talking about a declaration.

(The Chilean government—the only American nation besides Argentina still maintaining relations with the Axis—sent an energetic protest to Germany last night against the sinking of Brazilian ships, which it said was contrary to the laws and practices of warfare.)

The government, meanwhile, having given free rein to anti-Axis demonstrations for two days, moved to re-establish some measure of coolness by cancelling a student mass meeting last night in Rio de Janeiro and clamping down an 11 p. m. curfew.

Newspapers continued, however, to publish in large headlines the reported sinking of two Axis submarines and to demand strong action.

and the Kuban city of Krasnodar was left in German hands.

Several Russian counterattacks were launched in the area of Kotskaya, within the Don bend 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

More than 2,000 Germans were reported killed and 79 tanks destroyed or burned out in action yesterday and the communique said 5,500 Germans were slain and Nazi materiel heavily damaged during the last five days about Voronezh, a battle-scarred city in the upper Don.

The German crossing of the Don elbow, one objective of the campaign launched by Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock from the Kursk-Kharkov front June 28, was reported southeast of Kletskaya.

The communique report that Soviet soldiers had killed or wounded all who made the thrust implied that they had regained full mastery of the east bank of the Don in the defense of Stalingrad.

Southwest of Stalingrad, a see-saw battle was reported in progress for a railway station on the Caucasian line from Kotelnikovsu, 95 miles away.

HANG IT ALL!

Dry Cleaners Now Can Charge a Deposit On Hangers.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Your dry cleaner or launderer may now require a "reasonable deposit" to try to insure return of those wire coat hangers which are fast becoming hard to get.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson defined a "reasonable deposit" as from 1 to 5 cents, and said the deposit requirement was approved to encourage customers to return the coat hangers, which no longer are made in order to conserve steel.

Four Placed Under Bond at Hearing on Narcotics Charge.

TOLEDO—(UP)—Four men arrested early Sunday in Sandusky on charges of violating the federal narcotics act have pleaded innocent before U. S. Commissioner Morton Neipp and have been held under $4,000 bond each.

Robert E. Derritt, 22, Ernest H. Purnell, 21, and Ulysses McGough, 21, all of Cleveland, and Alfred Latanzio, 23, of Latrobe, Pa., were arraigned on charges of acquiring marihuana without paying the transfer tax.

a total of 295 men in the 1-B classification Aug. 1, when the last report was filed, but the number has increased since then.

Board 1 reported today that 63 of its men had been accepted this week for army service while approximately 40 others were deferred because of physical defects. Board 1 had the largest reservoir of 1-B men Aug. 1 when there were 123 in that classification. Board 2 had 85 and Board 3, 87.

Under the new army plan, all 1-B men placed in the 1-A group will be inducted into the army if the local boards' examining physicians find they are fit for duty of any kind. After induction, army officials will determine whether the inductees shall go into service or take office jobs and other military duties which are less strenuous.

Although the county's three boards inducted married men in July, a recent order makes it imperative that they halt the induction of family men until all their single men from 20 to 45 are called. The boards, however, have the right to call men married since the nation went to war last December and those who were married when it appeared that their induction was imminent.

That last qualifying clause gives boards wide powers in the calling of men who were married at any time after the selective service act was passed in the fall of 1940.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—T. J. Duffy, Columbus attorney and former state industrial commissioner, was regarded in political circles today as a possible candidate for the vacancy on the Ohio supreme court bench created by the death of Judge Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati.

The Democratic state central committee will meet in Columbus next Tuesday and probably will consider endorsement of Duffy for the four-year term, it was rumored.

Volunteer trucks will visit every ward in the city next week in answer to telephone calls from homes where scrap is collected and placed in convenient spots where drivers can pick it up, Stough said.

Papers and magazines should be turned over to patriotic or charitable organizations which will collect them at homes, the salvage chairman added.

Stough explained today that the huge pile of scrap metal at the J. M. Cousins junk yard in Mansfield is owned by the Globe Steel company which will soon divert it into usable war materials. The junk is being stored here temporarily, he said.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 20, 1942.

Successes are Minor, Thus Far

WITHOUT minimizing the brilliance and effectiveness of recent Allied action in the Solomon islands and yesterday's broad-scale raid on the Axis-held French coast, it again becomes important for Americans to avoid overconfidence or a feeling that the war is moving toward an early end.

The French people were warned—and Americans are similarly advised—that yesterday's commando attack was not to be mistaken for the "real invasion" that must come later, and Frenchmen were urged to hold their peace, "lest they sacrifice themselves needlessly to German reprisal."

"When the time comes," the broadcast to France said, "there will be an appeal to every French patriot to rise in support by throwing his might as well as his spirit on the Allied side."

In every theater of war it is being shown that when given fair equality in manpower and equipment, the fighting force of the United Nations is superior to that of the enemy, but this equality is still far from being attained, nor is it likely to come within the next few months.

Meanwhile, however, except in the Russian situation, there is justification for at least faint optimism—sufficient to encourage American determination to extend itself to the utmost in furthering the national war effort in every possible way—which includes increases in production of war materials as well as expansion of actual military forces.

Hostile acts of Germany toward Brazil point directly toward Axis intent to force a breach in this hemisphere, as a step toward attacking the United States, and with the Japanese menace to the west, there should be no underestimating of the threat that now hangs over this country—a threat that can be removed only by Allied success before that stage of Hitler's grandiose plans for world domination has been reached.

Damaging Tires Is Serious Offense

PROMPT and drastic action is needed to stop any mischievous or malicious practices that damage automobile tires and care should be taken to prevent nails, tacks, broken glass or other sharp objects from being left on city streets, alleys or drives, or on highways, country roads or lanes.

Report to authorities that a considerable quantity of nails had been strewn in wheel tracks on a road in the vicinity of Mansfield indicates lack of understanding on the part of some people, children or adults, of the seriousness of the present rubber shortage and the impossibility of securing tire replacements.

The present situation demands that any deliberate damage to tires should be treated as a major offense and efforts to disclose and punish the perpetrators should be as determined as in cases which are ordinarily regarded as more serious crimes.

Noise Is Noise, Whatever Its Source

AN ODDITY in the news is presented by action of a group of Ashland citizens petitioning council to abate the noise nuisance allegedly created by a religious organization in a residential section of that city.

The appeal to council asks that 10 p. m. be fixed as the closing time for services, so that the later night may not be disturbed by the "shouting, singing and screaming," of which neighbors complain.

Guarantees of religious freedom can scarcely be stretched to the point of sanctioning such unsuppressed fervor as would constitute a neighborhood nuisance, and Biblical injunctions seem sufficient to gain willing compliance by offenders, without resort to law. Consider these Bible excerpts, for instance: "In quietness and confidence shall be your strength" . . . "And that ye study to be quiet" . . . "That we may lead a quiet and peaceful life."

If there must be disturbing noises in the night let them not be made by those who are looked to as exemplars of individual and community good behavior.

American Eagle Flying Higher

THE EAGLE, as is well known, is the king of birds. But not of creation. For men are now invading the upper air and beating the eagles at their own game. Not in ease of flying, but in destructive power.

So it is natural that one of our most modern war commentators, Major Alexander P. de Seversky, harps on this theme incessantly as the great war proceeds. And Americans in general, both people and government, carry their military operations more and more into the air.

The bombastic motto of Artemus Ward, first American humorist, is realized. "Be like the eagle, and soar," he said.

And it is well to remember that the eagle is our national emblem. The nation is operating powerfully at last, in its own natural sphere, with its own totem.

Unceasing Flow of Junk

JUNK COLLECTIONS have been fine for Uncle Sam and and his war effort, but not so good for junk men. Their business lately is said to be hard hit.

Their line, says an expert, is "all washed up." Small scrap yards are going out of business, and since they have been the feeders for the big yards, the latter are shrinking and vanishing.

It need not be assumed, though, that this is the last word. A nation so lavish and thriftless as the American people is not going to reform all at once. There must still be millions of tons of old iron and rubber and other useful materials of many kinds lying around yards, basements, attics and barns. Meanwhile millions of tons of similar materials now in use are wearing out, and will soon be ready for the rubbish heap. It is reasonable to expect another national rubbish collection, and then perhaps a regular routine of them, before this cluttered country scrapes the real bottom of the junk-heap.

Another shortage: Waxed mustaches are going out of style as the wax came from France and the supply is getting low.

Unheard remark: "The fish that got away was much smaller than any of those I caught."

It now appears that Voliva was merely a little premature in thinking the world was flat.

And as a last line—buy your coal now!

MAYBE THEY'D BETTER BE TOLD

Attitude Toward Brazil Seen As Axis Move to Gain Base In S. A.

—By PIERRE J. HUSS

EDITOR'S NOTE—The true significance of Adolf Hitler's seemingly inexplicable action in antagonizing Brazil by sinking her ships indiscriminately is explained in the following article by Pierre J. Huss, noted foreign correspondent and author of "The Foe We Face."

AXIS BLOWS at South America from the sea and violent upheavals and revolts instigated by organized fifth columns of Germans and Japanese may follow swiftly on the heels of war if Brazil accepts Hitler's challenge in sinking Brazilian ships.

I know from long experience in covering Hitler that those nineteen Brazilian ships sunk in recent weeks by Axis submarines were attacked only in line with strict orders from Berlin. This means that Hitler definitely laid down a policy of aggression against Brazil, designed to serve his own purposes.

At first glance it would seem that Hitler has nothing to gain by provoking Brazil and therewith other South American nations into war against him. On second thought, however, there is a parallel here in his 1941 plot of war against North America.

He figured to gain military advantages by precipitating the United States into shooting war, thus compelling her to arm in her own defense and fight on all world fronts instead of concentrating all aid and resources in England.

Whether or not his theory worked out in practice or is kicking back at him with the force of a Missouri mule, it is possible that Hitler in recent months decided that a Brazil at war with the Axis is of more advantage to him than a neutral Brazil

Undoubtedly he feels that Brazil is militarily too weak to fight its own war by land, sea and air against him and must call for help upon the United States. In his mind, that means that if Brazil declares war on him, large contingents of United States air, land and sea forces will be diverted to South America, thus reducing the vast flow of our military expeditions across the Atlantic for the opening of a second front.

Then again, as in the case of North America, a shooting war with Brazil frees Hitler's hands to apply every possible weapon unrestrictedly.

THE WILD and often unexplored coast of Brazil and other parts of South America give excellent opportunity for hidden U-boat, plane and sea raider bases. Inside the land of the Amazon, there are colonies of Japs and Germans (and some Italians) said to number more than a hundred thousand. A heavy percentage of these aliens are able-bodied and specifically trained and organized fifth columnists.

Furthermore, it is a well-known Hitler axiom to strike at the weakest spot of the enemy. If the uprisings and instigated revolts of the fifth column in Brazil should succeed in rocking the outer defense, then the opportunity will beckon to Hitler to launch an expedition against Brazil and therewith face the United States with a hostile front within its own western hemisphere.

In Hitler's mind, this would effectively hold us at bay while he could concentrate on fighting out the war for a showdown with England.

MINOR reasons in Hitler's attack on Brazilian ships include such likelihoods that he is striving at first to scare Brazilian ships off the sea, or that he wants to demonstrate that both the South and North Atlantic are effectively dominated by his blockade.

But for nearly a year now he has been "picking" on Brazil, coming close to the impression that he was methodically working up to a larger goal. I heard many a spoken opinion, in German circles last year that in a war between Germany and the United States, a portion of South America actively in alliance with America would be necessary to the Axis in order to provide a legal foothold for the extension of war into the western hemisphere.

Health and Diet

Guard Health of School Children.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

FOR THE CHILD just starting school, the final human problem begins. He is face to face with his fellow human beings. No matter how well some of them get along with each other, fundamentally they are rivals.

Whether in friendship or in competition, the child begins to go on trial. The trial judge whose name is Nature is fair, impartial, but ruthless. The loving supplications of parents have no influence. The child had better be as well equipped physically as possible to make it.

Parents on Trial.

For the parents are on trial too. In the first place they are on trial to see that their child has good health—as good as luck and circumstances have permitted. Whether or not the law requires your child to have a health examination before entering school, the parents of the child will be building for the future happiness of the child if such an examination is made.

The first and most important feature of physical examination is to determine the status of the child's general nutrition. This does not mean that the child has to conform to a standard chart of height and weight. Some of the healthiest children are short and underweight and some of the least healthy are tall and fat.

But general nutrition and endurance are guide posts to the health of many organs and systems of the body, and poor nutrition is shown in the skin, the growth record, the impulse to activity, the appetite and 100 other things may indicate something wrong in some special part—blood, heart, teeth, tonsils, chronic lymphatic infection or what.

The teeth should have attention even though half of them are the temporary set. An examination of a cross section of Chicago's school children a few years ago showed that of 8,315 pupils examined, only 322 were considered by the dentists to have perfect teeth.

The child in the world of school begins to use his eyes and ears competitively. Before this he may have got by with considerable visual defect, but those days are over. He must hear and understand exactly what the teacher says, he must see clearly and accurately the printed page.

Visual Defects.

Learning to read is the most important single accomplishment of a civilized human being after he has learned the great fundamentals of walking, talking, seeing and hearing, coordinating all his muscles, feeding himself, and taking care of his skin and vegetative functions.

The child who cannot learn to read is usually neither dull nor mentally lazy. The correction of obvious visual errors will suggest itself at once. There are other factors. In a study of 25 nonreaders, all with good I.Q.'s, Kirkpatrick, of New York, found that 13 were timid, 19 had been read to at home and lacked initiative, 10 lived in homes where a foreign language was spoken.

Twenty-third president of the United States, Benjamin Harrison, was born this date, 1833, at North Bend, Ohio. He was the third son of John Scott Harrison, a son of President William Henry Harrison. Accelerated Commando Raids Set Pattern for Not-Distant Invasion

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

ALLIED landing in considerable force on the coast of occupied France is more than a commando raid; it sets the pattern for the invasion to come and is an implicit promise to the conquered peoples that the hour of liberation is not far distant.

The British were careful to warn the French population that this is not yet the opening of the coming second front, they were cautioned not to expose themselves by a premature uprising and were told that their help will be asked when the time comes. The promise was given that "France and her Allies will need you on the day of liberation."

The British warning was wise. If the hopes of the French people and of the other peoples of occupied Europe were roused too high by this preliminary operation, the let-down would be terrific when a general offensive failed to develop. The damage to morale would offset any possible advantage to be gained by the attack on Dieppe.

THE striking thing about the Dieppe raid is the perfect coordination of the land, sea and air forces involved. The part played by the air force is particularly important.

The air force prepared the way by preliminary bombing of communication lines and centers, such as the American raid Monday on Rouen and one by the R. A. F. a few days ago on Le Havre, both important centers near Dieppe. In the Rouen raid, the bombers smashed at round-houses accommodating 250 locomotives.

When the raid came, the invaders were covered not only by the fleet but by clouds of combat planes which kept the Germans off. Without the planes, the operation would have been impossible. In the full scale invasion, the combined British and American air force will play the same part.

The preliminary work of the air force is an integral part of Allied strategy. For months they have concentrated on rail lines and have destroyed or put out of commission thousands of German or German-operated locomotives. This makes it difficult for the Germans to take full advantage of the excellent communication lines in France to speed reinforcements to threatened points.

THE many points which the British have to choose for an attack compels the Germans to keep their forces wirely scattered. If they move too many troops to a point such as Dieppe to overwhelm the invaders, they may expose themselves somewhere else.

This keeps the Germans guessing and on the jump. For all they know, the Dieppe attack may be a diversion and the British are planning to strike in real force elsewhere in France, or Belgium, or the Netherlands. A drive through Holland, for instance, would outflank the heavy defenses which the Germans have set up in France and beyond the French border.

WASHINGTON — With the Army in the Capital:

The V-Mail (transmission of letters to overseas soldiers by transferring them to microfilm) has proved so popular that the Army has placed it on a two-way basis to the United Kingdom, the Middle East, Hawaii and Australia.

In the first six weeks of the one-way service, the Army postal service handled 250,000 V-mail letters.

APO officals have had to pause in their delivery of V-mail to warn senders: (1) addresses must be correct on the V-mail forms obtainable at all postoffices; and (2) of all things, women must not imprint kisses on letters to the soldiers, "since the lipstick may blur the writing making it illegible on the photographic reproduction."

WHEN the army announced that it was transferring its pigeon breeding and training center from Fort Monmouth, N. J., to Camp Crowder, Mo., a couple of interesting facts came out about the army's feathered Mercurys.

In the blood strains of carriers flying for the U. S. A. in World War II, are those of "Always Faithful," a Hall of Fame award winner in the pigeon world who several years ago winged its way 716 miles from Chattanooga to Fort Monmouth at almost 47 miles an hour; and "General Mauborgne" who set an all-time speed record by flying 600 miles from Kansas City to Fort Sam Houston in less than 14 hours—with no tail winds.

IT'S the little things that win a war. For years the Army has been shipping its "G.I." (government issue) cans in nests of six cans, crated—and that's the way they've been going with and to the forces overseas.

Then along comes some unnamed hero of the loading lines, and with an eye on those subsinkings, works out three new "packs" for the 10 to 32 gallon cans that are used for everything from garbage to washing dishes. As a result, nested cans are now packed with sugar, flour, rice and dry produce — the result, space savings up to 47 per cent.

WHEN the Army air forces announced recently, and with some justifiable pride, that their accident rate was 68 per cent lower than 12 years ago and 10 per cent below the 1930-40 ten-year average, they didn't tell all the story.

Some of the flying school safety records have been phenomenal. For instance, at Chico Field, Calif., student pilots have flown the equivalent of 500 times around the equator without a single fatal accident. At Craig Field, Alabama, an advanced flying school, the pilots clicked off a total distance of 1,179 times the earth's equatorial circumference, with only one minor accident; and 23 million miles without any accident due to mechanical causes.

This last is important because not only were the pilots trainees, but according to the National Aeronautics Association, which gathers the records on such things, the ground crew mechanics also were students.

Phony Money

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—In the windows of certain banks around town you will find an interesting display of federal currency called "Know Your Money."

These were prepared and distributed by the United States secret service and the treasury department, and were designed to help people recognize spurious or counterfeit bills, always plentiful in metropolitan centers. These displays carry 1, 5, 10, 20, and 100-dollar bank notes marked "Genuine," and their counterparts in counterfeit.

The way to detect most counterfeit bills, claims the secret service, is to examine the sawtooth points of the federal seal, which generally are uneven. If you get hold of a bill that seems phony, compare it with another of the same denomination. Thousands of dollars in counterfeit money, including nickels, dimes and quarters, change hands daily in New York.

THE approved way to pass off phony $5 bills is to work with a confederate. One man carrying several good bills and one counterfeit bill enters a cigar store and buys a package of cigarets. From the $5 phony bill he receives $4 and some odd change in genuine currency. He then makes a rendezvous with his confederate, turns over the good money, takes another phony bill, and the process is repeated. The "spender" never, under any circumstances, ventures abroad with more than one phony note in his pocket. If it is apprehended he can claim ignorance and at once make good the loss. If he were caught with more than one counterfeit note he would be taken into custody at once.

THE slot machines, gum machines, turnstiles and other gadgets operated by coins are not slug or counterfeit proof. Buckets of phony coins are collected each day. It is a simple matter to pass off fake money in large amounts of change, especially in a town like this, where everyone hurries and seldom stops long enough to give more than a glance at change.

But here again the one coin ritual is adhered to. Police detectives who are assigned to counterfeit cases say the idea is to pass only one bogus coin to each customer. If he spends ten cents and presents a dollar bill, one of the quarters is sure to be counterfeit. As a rule, it looks more genuine than imitation dimes and lesser coins. More than one coin, because of the difference in weight, is apt to excite suspicion.

In a busy mart like New York it is commonplace to go home with a few "queer" nickels in your pocket. The funny thing is that millions of people take them and pass them along without ever realizing they have been transmitting counterfeit money.

Overseas Christmas Gifts

It seems a trifle early, what with August's heat and all, to be bringing up the subject of the number of days before Christmas, but this year the matter is more important than it ever was.

For the war, navy and postoffice departments jointly are calling attention to the fact that November 1 is the deadline for mailing Christmas gifts to the men—and the women, too, for the latter are doing heroic duty as nurses—who are serving the United States overseas.

That means a lot of us must begin doing our Christmas shopping earlier than usual. The departments are suggesting packages be limited to about the size of an ordinary shoe box and weigh no more than six pounds.

The announcement also urges that neither food nor clothing be sent and that all gifts be of the kind easily carried and useful in any climate.—Columbus Dispatch.

A Farmer's Diary

Storm In August

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I TOOK a walk through the corn field in late afternoon, down long straight lanes of towering stalks that rustled and whispered nearly as tall again as I. I wanted to see if the squashes grew, and how the wet part of the field had changed, since it isn't yellow any longer.

The overcast sky grew grayer, and thunder rumbled. The moist earth sank beneath my feet. From each slender stalk, half formed ears protruded, with moist silken fringes. The heavy corn odor was all around. I was shut in, lost, in a mazy labyrinth of criss crossed planting.

The squashes, I found, are not a success. Lack of sun, perhaps. The corn at the lower end of the field will make a "nubbin crop." So I sat on the old rail fence and looked at the sky.

"It won't rain much," I prophesied loud. "Why not stay out and enjoy it?"

High overhead, a low rolling cloud ridge was struck by rays of sun and edged with fire. The western sky, below the mass of clouds became amber-pink. The tall trees on the crest of the hill waved back and forth — their branches flowing eastward like tattered flags. I heard the deep forest roar, and detached twigs rode furiously. Hot streaks of lightning cleft the rising cloud.

A buzzard sailed so high upon the crest that it was visible only at intervals. Clouds of dust were scooped from the gravel road and blown along in conflicting currents.

Then the lowering fluid air touched the field of corn, where I stood. The tall stalks bent in waves, like grass. At times I stood concealed within the dark green shelter, then suddenly I was head and shoulders above the eastern struggling corn. Broad blades slashed at me, as I went forward, with bent head.

I was exhilarated as though I had become a part of the elements. The keen wind, the brash blades, the strangely awesome sky, were worth much to me, even before I heard the first great staccato of drops beat upon the billowing sea of corn.

CHECK HEALTH TRENDS UNDER WAR CONDITIONS

Ohio Officials Given Task of Watching Effect of Harder Work, Hurried Living.

WASHINGTON — The Ohio division of statistics has been given an important war job.

It involves the sampling of death certificates with a view to detecting unfavorable health trends which might arise from harder work and hurried living.

Officials said that Ohio was among vital war work areas and thereby affected particularly by the altered national economy. In these areas, special indices based on a sample of death reports each month will be watched for any significant tendencies.

Based on state reports, the census bureau will prepare monthly bulletins on the health of the country at war. The bureau, intending to put the plan of action into effect shortly, suggested that death certificates offered a valuable source of public health information because of the completeness with which they were collected.

These certificates cover, for instance, the cause of death as well as the age, sex, race and occupation of the deceased.

The reasons for the check are numerous. In war time, changes affecting public health come with rapidity and violence. Hundreds, even thousands, of workers migrate to already crowded areas. Soldiers assemble in huge camps in rural areas, and sanitary facilities are overloaded.

Women and older men go into the factories. Working hours are long. Housing shortages are acute and trailer camps appear. Many doctors enter the military services. Worries multiply and diets change.

"The present plan," said the bureau in a statement, "is designed to provide an index of the repercussions of such changes on basic health conditions, though it will not permit the spotting of local epidemics or provide detailed statistics for small areas.

"Danger limits will be set for certain diseases in each broad region of the United States. These limits will be based on the census bureau's records of deaths for past years. When the bureau's month-by-month graphs of deaths from a disease pass the danger limit in one region, then some action will be indicated.

"Generally, the next step will be to make a more complete investigation to discover whether the increase can be accounted for on some grounds other than those of a change in health conditions. If it cannot be accounted for thus, then the public health authorities and officials concerned with protection and utilization of the nation's manpower resources will be enabled to act to remedy the situation."

The Amazing New Kind Of Bread...

"PATENTED FLAVOR"

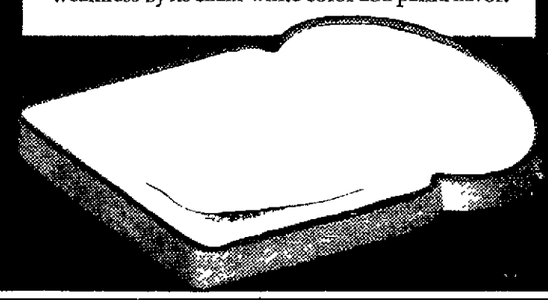
WONDER BREAD?

Women Everywhere Are Quitting Old Kinds For It At The Rate Of 5,000 A Week Now

CHALK-WHITE

"REFINED" BREAD (UNENRICHED)

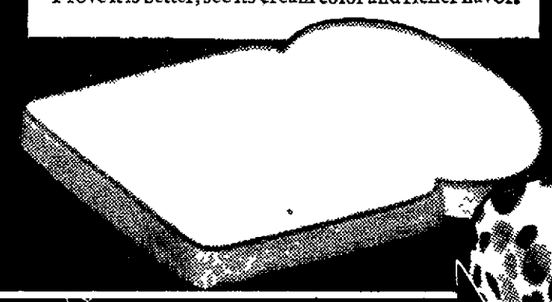
Bled chalk-white by refining, the flour used to make ordinary white bread is naturally deficient in vitamins and minerals. You can detect its inherent weakness by its chalk-white color and pallid flavor.



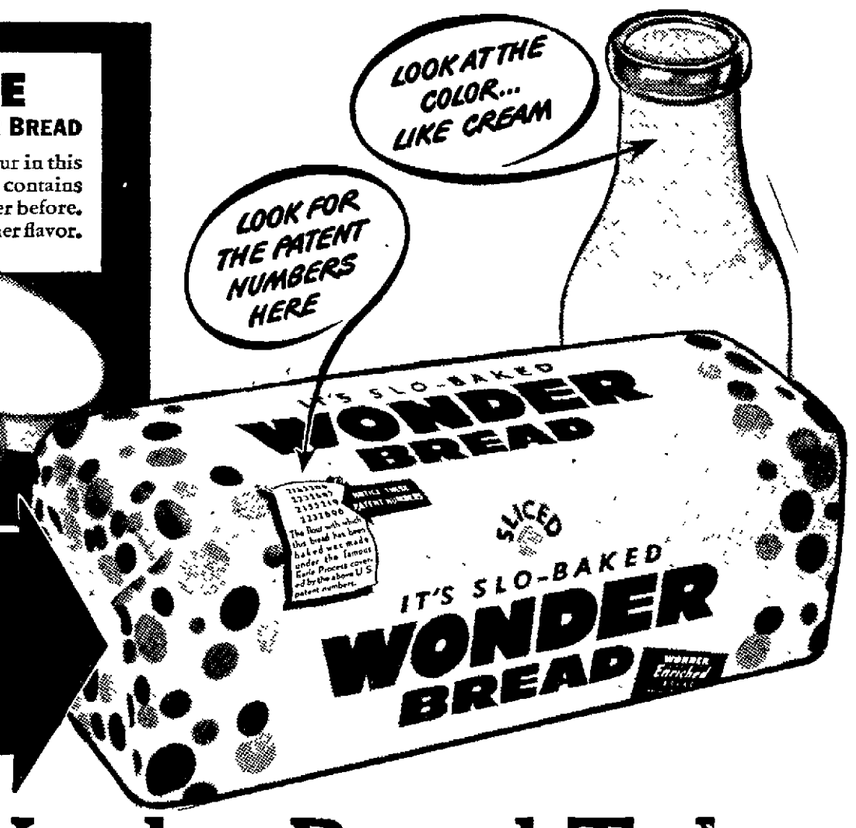
CREAM-WHITE

"PATENTED FLAVOR" NEW WONDER BREAD

Made by the Earle Patented Process, the flour in this new "Patented Flavor" Wonder Bread contains more natural vitamins and minerals than ever before. Prove it is better; see its cream color and richer flavor.



Only Wonder Bread has "PATENTED FLAVOR"
Because Only Wonder Bread Is Made This Way From Earle Patented Process Flour
(U.S. Pat. Nos. 2143306, 2232697, 2155219, 2232696)



Get New "Patented Flavor" Wonder Bread Today; Put On Your Table And Into Lunch Box

Takes The Place Of Any White Bread Deficient In Natural Flavor, Vitamins And Minerals Because It Contains More Natural Flavor, Wheat Vitamins And Minerals

AT LAST! At your grocer's today the new kind of bread you have heard so much about. The "patented flavor" bread which already has taken the place of ordinary kinds in over 540,000 American homes because:

1. Because it brings more of the rich, natural flavor of wheat full-ripened in the sun than white bread robbed of Nature's bounty. Thus, is better for taste.
2. Because it contains more natural vitamins and minerals of wheat now than ever before thought possible.

You can see the difference at once. Gone is the chalk-white look of the ordinary baker's bread. Instead, this new "patented flavor" kind has the color of the cream on the top of the bottle of milk.

A Remarkable Discovery

Everybody knows the trouble with ordinary white bread. Made from flour bled white in refining to make a whiter loaf. Then Theodore Earle patented his discovery (U. S. Pat. Nos. 2143306, 2232697, 2155219, 2232696). And here is the secret of "patented flavor."

By removing the bad-tasting outer skin of the grain, you get this richer, better tasting loaf. A bread the color of cream; tender in texture and crust. And with more natural vitamins and minerals.

To obtain this amazing new "patented flavor" loaf—ask your grocer for the new Wonder Bread. And see for yourself why women everywhere are quitting ordinary white bread for this new kind at the rate of over 5,000 a week now.

A Great Thrill

Most people are astonished and thrilled by their first taste of this new "patented flavor" Wonder Bread. Not the flat, insipid flavor of the usual chalk-white kind. But refreshingly different! Like the taste of fresh fruit after canned. You'll say it's marvelous!

But discover how much better this new "patented flavor" Wonder Bread tastes. Mothers of growing children and wives of men who work should serve it instead of any ordinary vitamin-deficient kind.

Then, too, "patented flavor" Wonder Bread is doubly fresh—fresh when you buy it and fresh when you eat it. Because slo-baked for lasting freshness—baked 13% longer than many ordinary kinds.

See how much longer "patented flavor" Wonder Bread stays fresh in the bread box; how much longer sandwiches stay fresh in the lunch box.

Ask your grocer for the bread with "patented flavor"—the new Wonder Bread—today sure. You, too, will be surprised and thrilled with it.

Musical Romance.

"Syncopation," the Ohio attraction, depicts the rise of a great trumpet player against a musical background that begins with the Basin Street Blues and carries through to the advent of swing. Jackie Cooper, himself a no mean band leader, plays the trumpeter and the cast includes about 15 different band organizations headed by Benny Goodman, Gene Krupa and Alvino Rey. Seven of the group mass for a climactic performance of Leith Stevens' "American Rhapsody." Bonita Granville, Adolphe Menjou and George Bancroft are in the picture.

Broadway Melodrama.

A gangland melodrama played amid the lights and shadows of Broadway and spiced with the music of Freddy Martin's orchestra, the Madison attraction, "The Mayor of 44th Street," presents George Murphy and Anne Shirley as a dancing team that tries to run a legitimate business despite the muscling-in of unscrupulous parties. Based on a factual article published in Collier's magazine the picture uses Tschaikowsky's "B flat minor Concerto," that Martin has popularized on disc, as a theme. "Powder Town," the co-feature, has Victor McLaglen and June Havoc

Bridal Comedy.

The well-meaning intentions of a bridal pair's in-laws disrupt the domestic bliss of a young couple in "This Time for Keeps," showing at the Ritz. Guy Kibbee and Irene Rich appear as the in-laws and Virginia Weidler as the kid sister who threaten the happiness of the newlyweds, Robert Sterling and Ann Rutherford. The exploits of a Canadian intelligence officer and his efforts to thwart a daring coupe planned by Axis undercover agents operating around San Francisco's harbor district motivate the action in the second picture, "Unseen Enemy," with Leo Carrillo and Andy Devine.

Cartoon Adventure.

Barney Google, Snuffy Smith, Spark Plug and other characters in Billy DeBeck's famous comic strip come to life in "Hillbilly Blitzkrieg," opening today at the Park. A riotous comedy the picture deals with the hair-raising events that ensue when Snuffy is detailed to work on a radio-controlled rocket ship being considered by the government. Cliff Nazarro plays Barney, Bud Duncan has the part of Snuffy, and Edgar Kennedy and Lucien Littlefield are in the cast. "Frisco Lil," the second picture, features Kent Taylor.

New Fur Coats Are Sturdy Models

Left to right, mink-dyed muskrat coat; white-dyed wolf; fitted leopard model.

By SUSAN BARDEN

In tune with the new era of busy routine, when health and warmth go hand-in-hand, fur designers have created a group of utility coats that were especially made up for career girls and war workers.

For busy women who dash from offices to first aid classes or patrol air warden beats, and then rush on to dinner with their best beaux, these sturdy type coats are just the thing They will, because of their new treatment, take on a luxurious air for festive evenings

Raccoon and Australian opossum, which have always been durable, all-around furs, show a 1942 fashion consciousness with turned back cuffs, wool fabric inserts, or ribbed wool waistline for a slim silhouette

The flat type of furs, such as seal, nutria and beaver, feature single and double-vent backs for easy walking There are also the little boy's styles, double-breasted with huge and many pockets.

Persian Lamb Draped.

In some collections Persian lamb, a hardy fur, has been subtly draped like fabric, with soft dressmaker touches such as inserts of wool, tapered sleeves and tuxedo fronts.

The fitted leopard coat is street length, with a jaunty little collar and a gold, star-studded belt to make it youthful and appropriate for dressy occasions.

The other two coats are a mink-dyed muskrat that is dress length with a small collar, and a white-dyed wolf which is three-quarter length and would be perfect for both daytime and formal wear.

A POSTCARD in the morning mail brings greetings from Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine, who is in the east visiting her niece, Mrs. Howard Moody (Martha Davey) of New Haven, Conn. She is spending this week in New York City. . . . Lieut. and Mrs. Robert Smeltzer of Camp Roberts, Calif., are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs Camp Smeltzer, 331 West Fourth street After spending several weeks' leave here, Lieut. Smeltzer will report back to Camp Roberts. This is the first trip to Ohio for Mrs. Smeltzer, who is a Californian.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stutz and daughter, Julieann, have returned to their home in Huntington, W. Va. Mrs. Stutz and Julieann have spent the past three months with the former's parents, Councilman and Mrs. George Kyle, Penn avenue. Georgeann Kyle accompanied her sister and family to Huntington for a month's visit.

* * *

MR. AND MRS J REXFORD SMALL and Mrs S S Dew, 67 Glenwood boulevard, have had as their guest, Dr. John G. Graham, jr., nephew of the Smalls and grandson of Mrs. Dew. "Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Just imagine you're the original Sleeping Beauty to be aroused by the kiss of your prince," Katharine said a few minutes later, when she put me into bed, tucked a blanket around me and shaded the light.

But I did not see the light go out, and I was fast asleep until Dicky's pressure on my hand awakened me.

"Had a good nap?" he asked, then "Dad and Ronald are in the next room," he whispered.

When I had dressed I found him in the living room in earnest colloquy with my father, Ronald, and one of my father's guards.

"The first thing," my father was saying, "is to get out of the hotel without Milnar or his henchmen suspecting our destination. Miller and I, in different cars now near the entrance with guards in each, will start almost together, and the cars which Milner has in readiness will trail us.

"Five minutes exactly after we leave this room, do you, Richard, with Margaret and Ronald, come down stairs to the front entrance, and take a taxi which the doorman will indicate to you. Both driver and doorman are ostensibly Milner's men, but secretly belong to our side.

Wild Goose Chase.

"The taxi driver will take you to the Pardee hotel, which fronts on two streets. You will walk through the hotel to the opposite door, get into a waiting cab that bears this number," handing a piece of paper to Dicky, "and the driver will take you to a corner near the hideaway, where you will find the armored car which you will take to Weirhampton.

"In the meantime," he went on, "Miller and I will be playing a gorgeous game of hide and seek with Milner's trailing cabs, and will eventually lead them back here. By that time," he concluded, you will be well on your way to Weirhampton, and you, Margaret, can get some more sleep on the way up."

But I had no desire for sleep. I was fairly starved for a talk with my husband.

Ronald tactfully said he wanted to ride in the front seat with the driver, and through the long night journey I sat with my head against Dicky's shoulder.

The trip back from Weirhampton with Carolyn was devoid of incident After her first meeting with Ronald, when she flung herself into his arms and sobbed hysterically, she nestled close to him all the way back.

But when, according to my father's directions, Ronald left her with Dicky and me when we reached the Underwood home, her eyes widened with resentment and alarm.

"You're not going to leave me, Ron!" she protested tearfully.

"I must, dear," he said. "Mr. Spencer wishes to see me for a little while, then I'll be back."

Carolyn looked at Dicky and me with clearly evident suspicion as she went with us up the steps of the Underwood home.

"I wonder," she said darkly.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, August 21.

There are signs in the lunar operations pointing to some conflicting and contradictory conditions, which may incite critical situations to be dealt with cautiously, decisively and shrewdly as well. The menace may be of a secret, subtle and sinister nature and should be met and disposed of with kindred strategem and craftiness. Intrigue arising from individuals as well as large organizations, secret, political or diplomatic bodies may challenge prudence and alertness. However, there is promise of help and understanding from superiors.

Those whose birthday it is may be under the menace of intrigue, fraud, duplicity and secret enmity, arising from secret and sinister sources. It may be necessary to be vigilant, shrewd, cautious and ready to meet these undercover and malicious attacks with similar craft and strategy. It would be wise to cultivate those in authority, employers and superiors, frankly revealing threatening situations.

A child born on this day may attain success and good fortune, against secret enemies or impostors, mainly because of the good will and confidence of its superiors..

Bees Help Us To Conserve Much Sugar

By BETSY NEWMAN.

I hope the bees will keep extra busy these lovely summer days, for we need the product of their industry to help us conserve our sugar ration—we who have a love of sweets. We can also continue to use corn syrup to eke out both sugar and honey.

Today's Menu.

Breaded Veal Baked Potatoes
Spinach
Lettuce and Cucumber Salad
Jelly Ring with Berries or Strawberry Mint Plate
Iced Tea

Jelly Ring with Berries or Fruit.

1 pkg. lemon flavored gelatin
2 Tbsps. lemon or lime juice
Berries or fresh fruit
Honey

Dissolve gelatin with 1 cup hot or warm water; put lemon or lime juice into a measuring cup, fill with cold water, and add to gelatin, then turn into ring mold and chill until firm. Remove to cold plate, and fill center with washed and hulled berries or peeled and sliced peaches or bananas, slightly sweetened with honey. Serve plain or with cream.

Berry or Peach Mint Plate.

2 cups cream, whipped
Few grains salt
½ cup crushed green mints
Berries or sliced peaches
Honey or corn syrup for sweetening
Sponge cake

Whip cream, fold in salt and crushed mints. Turn into freezing tray of refrigerator and freeze until firm. Slice sponge cake, toast lightly, and put one slice on each dessert plate. Cover with mint cream and make a border of berries or sliced fresh peaches, or arrange them over the top of the cream.

Canning Berries With Little Sugar

Allow ½ cup sugar to 1 quart of berries, or ½ cup sugar and ½ cup corn syrup. Better work only with small amounts at a time. It takes from 3 to 4 quarts of berries to fill 1 quart jar. Wash and drain berries and hull, put into preserving kettle in layers, sprinkle sugar and syrup over each layer, then let berries stand for 1 hour. Cover heat slowly to boiling point and boil 5 minutes. Let berries stand in syrup overnight, or, if you prefer, turn immediately into jars, fill to within ½ inch of top, seal and process in hot water bath for 20 minutes, or 45 minutes in 250 degree F. oven.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GENIUSES AT MISTAKES

LUCKY indeed are those people who seem to do everything right. In my department of life, whatever decision they make usually turns out to be the winning one. On the other side of the scale are those poor unfortunates who appear to have pretty fair judgment in the courses they choose, only to learn that things would have worked out much better if they had chosen another alternative. Some of these are virtual geniuses in finding how to make mistakes, at the bridge table as well as elsewhere.

At two duplicate tables, the heart 3 was led against that contract, one declarer making it and the other being set three tricks, due to difference in method of play. The one who made it decided to go after the spades, and led the 3 to the 9. North held up his A, whereupon the K knocked it out. North sent back the heart 5 to the A and the club 9 was finessed to the Q. North then knocked out the last heart stopper The club 4 to the A dropped the K, and three spades were run, followed by the diamond J which was sent through to the Q South had only diamonds left, so scored his A and then had to give East his contract with the 9 and the K.

After the other declarer got the first trick with the heart J, he decided to work on clubs, fearing that if the opponents got the club A out of dummy, there would not be enough entries to score the spades. He sent the club 9 to the Q. North docked out the heart A, and then the club A dropped the K. With no heart to lead back to his own hand, East then called the diamond J from dummy, letting the Q win it. South now switched to the spade 4, the K being put on and North holding up his A. Next came the diamond 10, which South allowed to win. With his goose now cooked, poor East called the diamond 3 to his K and South's A The diamond 9 and 8 were cashed also, and the spade 5 led. The Q was called from dummy, the A winning and the 8 coming back to the J, for the seventh trick by the defenders. South then had to lead his heart Q to the K to give up the final trick, but the declarer was down three.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

RED CROSS OFFERS RULES FOR SAFETY AS CYCLE CRASHES GROW

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The American Red Cross' accident prevention service today disclosed that gasoline and tire rationing have resulted in an increasing number of bicycle accidents and suggested a list of "don'ts" to help reduce the mishaps.

More than 1,100 persons were killed and 37,000 injured in bicycle accidents last year, the Red Cross reported. Collisions with automobiles were responsible for 900 of the fatalities and a larger number of the non-fatal accidents.

The organization prepared the following as a safety measure:

"Don't ride a mechanically defective bicycle: loose handlebars or faulty brakes may lead to your downfall.

"Don't ride a bike in traffic until you have had sufficient practice to give you self-confidence; even then, riding in congested areas is risky.

"Don't zig-zag over the road; keep to the right.

"Don't violate traffic regulations, the rules for motorists apply to bicyclists too.

"Don't ride after dark unless your bike is equipped with a headlight and a tail reflector.

"Don't speed on wet pavements you may skid into a car.

"Don't stunt or race in traffic.

"Don't 'hitch' on to moving automobiles or trucks.

"And, unless you have a bicycle built for two, don't carry a second passenger and foolishly endanger two lives."

SPEED WORK ON CONSTRUCTION OF WATER LINE

City Hurries Job in View of Re-surfacing Program on Park Avenue East.

Work on the new eight-inch water line that the city is laying on Park avenue east is being speeded in view of the scheduled re-surfacing of the area by the state highway department and the work will probably be completed by the last of the week.

O. C. Kalbfleisch, superintendent of the Mansfield waterworks department, said today that the excavation had progressed as far east as the Chevrolet Sales company and would go as far as the Art Rattan company where a sprinkler system is to be installed.

The 900-foot stretch of five-inch water line which the city is now replacing has been installed since 1867, Kalbfleisch said. Within recent years it has been impossible for the city to get parts for it since that type of pipe is now non-existent.

After the line is replaced to the Art Rattan company, the city will continue the eight-inch line south on Hedges street as soon as materials can be obtained. The plans, according to Kalbfleisch, call for running the line south on Hedges to Luther place, then east on Luther to Bushnell street where it will join a 12-inch water main.

The work will not interfere with traffic to any extent, Kalbfleisch explained. Willis avenue will probably be closed a short time as will Hedges street.

Butler 4-H Club Girls Entertain Their Mothers

Girls of the Butler Worthwhile 4-H club turned their annual judging session into a social affair at the home of Betty Collier Tuesday night and invited their mothers to witness the judging.

Miss Elizabeth Bay, county home demonstration agent, acted as judge and health examinations were given by Mrs. Mary Wilkinson, city health nurse.

A style show presenting dresses made by the club and a program number by each member comprised the entertainment. Norma Jean Folk demonstrated the well-equipped sewing basket and Ruth Morgan and Lola Faye Folk gave a team demonstration on clothing construction and seams and finishes.

The 4-H club colors, green and white, appointed the tables for refreshments.

CHAPTER III

Then Paul laughed: "Good morning. Fancy finding you here! The management trusts you slept well."

But it seemed to Amy she detected a wary look in his eyes. And she thought as she had the night before, "He's afraid of women!" Only this time she thought farther. She said to herself, "Women have pursued him too much." She recalled hastily something he had said a few hours earlier as the car climbed a dark mountain road—something about hating rich women and something about a tie or bond that he hated. Well, he wasn't going to be allowed to think that just because she'd slept all night with his arm around her that she—

Involuntarily her glance strayed to his arm flung carelessly across the back of the seat and she remembered all of a sudden how it had felt about her—warm and close and safe And she was furious with herself.

"I slept passably," she told him "I must have crossed two states without opening my eyes But now I could do with a spot of breakfast"

"Woman, how your words appeal to me!" Now the hint of wariness had vanished and he was frank and comradely. "I'd like to shave first though."

"This modern generation does beat me!" Miss Spires declaimed eyeing them obliquely from the front seat.

Later, as she struggled to pull a comb through her fuzzy permanent before a service station mirror, she said to Amy, "In my day if a girl had been that close to such a good-looking young man she'd have been all—well, you know! He looks like—oh, sweet and noble like Sir Galahad"

"Nuts!" said Amy, fiercely raking her comb through her shining brown page-boy bob.

In the only restaurant that they could find open that early in the morning Mr. Popopopolous—Paul insisted upon giving the proprietor that nickname—was engaged in mopping the floor so the party of four had to separate i order to occupy two persons booths along the wall, Miss Spires and Mr McCloud in one and two younger people in the other.

That gave Paul a chance to ask, "Will you make a date with me now for the morning I'd suggest that as soon as we get to Cincinnati we hunt a room for you I know a place in Walnut Hills—nice woman—Irish, motherly. Her rooms are good and not too expensive and not far from downtown Then after you get settled there we can hunt up the Brendermier conservatory. Though I'm certain we'll never find it"

"Thank you that's nice of you She looked down at her plate, long lashes veiling her eyes, for she was thinking that Miss Spires hadn't been entirely wrong when she'd said he looked "sweet and noble like Sir Galahad." Though as far as Amy could remember Sir Galahad's nobility never took the form of finding rooms for wandering maidens.

"I'll have to leave you after lunch," Paul told her. "My sister will be expecting me. I wrote her that she could meet me at the Gibson hotel at 8:30 but I'll wire her that she needn't be there. Frani will be glad She wouldn't fancy getting up early in the morning and driving down town.

"I didn't have time to tell you about Frani last night. In addition to being my sister she's Mrs Guy Dillingham and she lives in a house on top of a hill up the river A quiet peaceful place. It's not Frani's fault though that it's quiet or peaceful. It's Guy. My brother-in-law, Guy Dillingham, is just about the swellest person I know I wonder sometimes how Frani ever got him. . . No, I don't. I know. She got him the way she gets every man she meets—simply by having the blackest hair and the bluest eyes you ever saw and by having a smile—well, it makes little dimples at the corners of her mouth. . . . Oh, I don't know how to describe Frani's smile to you!"

Amy almost said, "You don't have to" But she was glad she'd checked herself in time It was rather nice that he didn't realize he looked like that

"But anyway," he went on, she looks delightfully frank and sweet and in reality she's temperamental and selfish as hell I love her because she's my sister but I'm not taken in by her in the least I hope I'll like her youngster."

"Youngster?" she questioned

Yep A little girl about five years old I haven't seen her since she was two. You see, I've been away during the last three years of her hectic life They say she's a terrible brat—something like Frani That is, some gossipy friends I met in New York say so. If she's as mean as Frani was at her age, she's certainly something! You see, I haven't any happy memories of family life to cherish as you have"

"Oh, I know it's pain to lose a person you've loved," he added gently, seeing the sorrow in Amy's eyes, "But a memory like the one you have of your father is something to sustain you. You see, Frani and I were left to scratch for ourselves when we were small She was five and I was three. I don't remember my parents—they were from England No, don't look interested There's no aristocratic lineage from overseas My father was pharmaceutist in a small drug store. Nice simple young people without any relatives over here When they died an old couple in the neighborhood took us in They were good to us—good as gold But they couldn't afford to educate us Frani sang in night clubs She can't sing really, but she has this 'oomph' or 'glamour' I managed to give myself an art education"

"And to take yourself to Europe," she interrupted.

"No," he said harshly. "I started to tell you about Europe last night. I wanted to tell you. But I'll wait until we have more time alone."

"And now," he was deliberately changing the subject, "I want to give you that address in Walnut Hills Even though I am taking you there you might as well have it."

He pulled a notebook from his pocket, tore out a page and scribbled across it in a sprawling emphatic handwriting, "Mrs. Bridget Walsh, 37 Fulton avenue, Walnut Hills"

"There; put that in your bag," he said.

Later they stopped while he telephoned Frani and at 8 30 sharp, as though they were travelling on train schedule, they drew up in front of a hotel in Cincinnati Paul had said they'd stop there for coffee and cinnamon toast before they went on out to Walnut Hills.

Amy felt a real regret in saying good-bye to loquacious Miss Spires and even to quiet Mr. McCloud who had said so little on the trip that she had hardly been aware of his presence. After all they and the long night rue with them were a link connecting her with Washington and the old life.

But there was still Paul, taking charge of her and her bags with a bossy masculine air of proprietorship. She realized now how sunk she would have been without him It was no new experience to her to be alone in a strange city. But always there had been plenty of money in her bag and a book of blank checks that could be filled out for any reasonable amount, and a father in the background who could always be reached by telephone or telegraph

She was so grateful to Paul Bevan that she felt like clinging to his arm as they crossed the sidewalk to the hotel entrance. Because she felt that way she walked ahead of him, her head high so that the feather on her hat took a jaunty Robinhood angle. When he stopped to give two of the bags to a bellboy outside the revolving door, she ran on ahead into the lobby That was how she happened to be standing a little to one side of the door when he came in—so that he appeared to be alone

Obviously the girl who hurried forward from somewhere back in the lobby thought he was alone. She was a slim lovely person—fine rather than beautiful, with her small delicately-molded face and copper hair. She had on expensive fall tweeds. A big silver fox fur dangled over one shoulder. And she wore an orchid in her coat lapel Evidently she was dressed to meet someone very special.

That that someone was Paul Bevan was apparent in the eagerness with which she held out both hands to him, in the expression in her gray eyes.

It was the look—Amy admitted to herself with a stab of pain that amazed her—of a girl who expected to be kissed.

Paul didn't kiss her But he took both of the proferred hands in his

"Paul," the girl said in a soft, breathless voice.

Paul was standing with his back to Amy so that she could not see his expression, but that same breathlessness was in his reply No, not the same either His breathlessness might be due partly to shock and embarrassment

"Marcia! This—why, this is a surprise!"

Marcia's laugh was joyous "I knew it would be" Her eyes traveled over his face, taking it in feature by feature as though she hadn't seen him for a long time "Frani and I planned it Frani's out of town. She won't be back until tomorrow But I told her before she left that I'd be here at 8:30. I've been here since eight," she added shyly.

"It's—it's swell of you, Marcia," Paul mumbled. "Excuse me. Just a moment."

He got Amy and escorted her to the other girl. "Marcia, this is Amy Upchurch Tudor. She's from North Carolina though she's spent most of her life in France and Prague and points east. I met her yesterday in the Auto-Share-the-Expense-Travel Agency in Washington We've bumped over mountains together all night and now we're old friends. My old friend Amy—this is my old old friend, Marcia Fairbairne."

Marcia was gracious and cordial. "Do you know I was worried at first when Paul wrote that he was coming this way," she confided. "It was a crazy idea he had of economizing. But now that I've seen you I feel better about it."

New Battle Looming Over Farm Prices

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: Lush husky-throated Gertrude Niesen is Broadway's favorite torch singer. And here she writes about songs—songs and their stories.—D. K.)

Gertrude Niesen Says—

Manhattan is a metropolis built on melody, steeped in song. Rhythm is its heartbeat. Dim its lights, and you find Broadway as exciting as ever. But still its music and you kill its spirit. Without the blues, no festive flavor. Tin Pan Alley is an imaginary (actually, music publishers can be found on Seventh avenue and on Broadway and in the West Forties) but completely indispensible thoroughfare.

Occasionally drama has brushed the wings of song. Mary Martin, hearing of her father's death and stepping onto the stage to sing her gay and saucy tune, "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." Fannie Brice, whose love and loyalty for her first husband, Nicky Arnstein, was something the street discussed in awed whispers, singing "My Man" in the Ziegfeld "Follies" the night she knew he would never again be hers. A total amateur writing the hit song of the year as a tribute to her fiance who died—that was Ruth Loew and "I'll Never Smile Again."

Those stories are famous. Time and again they have been discussed and dramatized. And of course it is not news that almost everyone, everywhere, has a favorite song—a song that brings memories of his or her happiest moments. You can't escape songs—in the gay cafes where the bands play, at home, in the movie theaters, in the Broadway show houses—even in taxicabs. And songs have a way of staying with you.

Sometimes the tenderest love songs come into being the most prosaic way. Harold Adamson is a young lyricist who has given us many hits, including "Time on My Hands." Some years ago, in Hollywood, a major film company offered Hal a staggering sum of money to pen a love lyric of the torrid "torch" variety. Hal accepted the job and then he found himself floundering for an idea. For weeks, he stayed closeted in his apartment—nibbling lead pencils, staring out the window, pacing the floor. All his seclusion, all his concentration proved to be in vain. Inspiration stubbornly refused to come.

In desperation, Hal decided to stop trying for a few days and then start afresh. That evening he went to a neighborhood theater. Walter Huston in "Dodsworth" was the film attraction, and during the plot's unreeling Huston asked an endearing question of his cinema wife. Quick as a flash, Adamson left the theater. Forty minutes later he had completed the perfect song for the studio's requirements.

Because the words Huston had spoken on the screen—the words which became the title of Adamson's song—were "Did I Remember to Tell You I Adore You?"

Songwriting is a business, but sometimes songs are inspired by the deepest and most genuine emotions. Songs are written from the depths of despair—songs like Irving Berlin's "I Lost the Sunshine and Roses, When I Lost You," which he wrote immediately following the death of his first wife. But other songs are written from the heights of happiness. Irving Berlin wrote that kind of a song, too. It was years later. He had met and fallen in love with Ellin Mackaye. She married him and as a wedding present, he wrote for her one of the tenderest ballads of modern music—"I'll Be Loving You Always."

Sometimes fine songs are treated like stepchildren until a Fairy Godmother in the guise of a songstress or orchestra leader decides to wave a magic wand over the neglected melody. Years ago, Duke Ellington and his orchestra were fulfilling one of their numerous recording dates. Records have an "A" and "B" side—the "A" side is the side sales depend upon. Usually it is something being sung and played on the air and enjoying a wave of popularity. The "B" side is just anything picked to go along for a ride. Well, Duke picked his "A" song—I doubt if he could tell you the name of it now, because it has long since been forgotten. For the "B" side he picked a strangely different type of song, one that appealed to him as a musician. It wasn't considered "commercial" by the music publishers because it did not conform to a routine pattern. Duke did the song, never expecting it to mean anything. But the public found a song—on the "B" side of the record—that has lived and been loved ever since: Hoagy Carmichael's "Stardust."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—You find seers and prophets in the oddest places in Hollywood. Behind a camera, for instance.

Robert Planck is a cameraman, or chief cinematographer. He has been photographing these several weeks a movie called "Reunion." Three days before a certain romantic event Prophet Planck began making exploratory remarks to the star.

Coons

"Young lady," he said, "you are up to something."

The young lady smiled, looked innocent.

"Young lady," he said next day, "there is something in the air." Again the young lady smiled.

"Young lady," he said again. "What goes on?"

It went on that evening—in Ventura, Calif., where Joan Crawford became Mrs. Philip Terry, in a wedding that threw the local romance-handicappers for a reeling stagger.

Prophet Planck owes his powers of divination to no occult system. Having worked on half a dozen Crawford pictures, he knows her extremely photogenic face by heart, can "read" its secrets.

Prophet Planck's second sight is of no particular use, other than professional, at the moment. Mrs. Terry is fulfilling her promatrimonial promise: "If I have a romance, I'll shout it to the skies." Mrs. Terry has a romance, and she is shouting it. Romance is extremely becoming to Mrs. Terry.

Part of her "shouting" is expressed in radiance. Between scenes, she clicks her knitting needles and eulogizes the young actor she discovered six months ago. This was before the time, as I recollect it, that the gossipers were full of items about Joan's attachment for a mysterious suitor in the east.

Mrs. Terry, to make the sweet story short, thinks Mr. Terry is very wonderful and, incidentally, a wonderful actor who has not yet begun to be appreciated ("The Parson of Paramount," "Wake Island," etc.) but will, but will.

* * *

He was "so wonderful," for instance, when some magazine writer asked him if he thought he could take it if they called him "Mr. Joan Crawford" and his reply was, "I don't think I'll be called that but if I am it will be all right with me."

GOP PLANNING BUSINESSLIKE CONVENTION

'No Ballyhoo' Committee Says as It Re-elects Schorr, Picks Sept. 30.

(By United Press)

The Republican State Central committee and executive committee, newly constituted under its former officers, today planned for the G. O. P. state convention, Sept. 30, which it was announced will be a streamlined one-day assembly, "strictly business with no ballyhoo."

The central committee, including new members chosen at the primary election last week, unanimously re-elected Chairman Ed. D. Schorr, Cincinnati; Mrs. Mary L. Forrest, Cleveland, vice chairman; Secretary Noland T. Boggs, Toledo; and treasurer Hugh Huntington, Columbus.

Following precedent of past years, the central committee constituted itself the state executive committee and made its officers the officers of the executive committee. Present members and officers have tenure of two years.

The committee announced it will meet again Sept. 9, guest of Governor Bricker at a luncheon where campaign plans will be outlined. Bricker has announced that his secretary, Don Power, will head his campaign.

No alternative delegates will be elected this year, with the effect that attendance will be confined to approximately 350 regular delegates.

A committee on arrangements for the convention was instructed to designate temporary convention officers and to draft a tentative state platform for submission to the convention resolutions committee.

Members of the arrangements committee included: Edward C. Stanton, Cleveland; Fred H. Johnson, Zanesville; Miss Margaret Baker, Springfield; Mrs. Gladys Coffin, Cincinnati; Ward C. Cross, Ashtabula; Rus C. Heddleston, East Liverpool; and J. C. Keenan, Upper Sandusky.

Convention delegates will include all Republican candidates for state offices (except judicial offices); all Republican candidates for membership in the state general assembly; all members of the central and executive committee; and all chairmen of Republican county central and executive committees in the state.

JURY CLEARS 3 NEWSPAPERS

Finds Publication of Story on Battle of Midway No Violation of Law.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—The investigation into a published story on the battle of Midway island, in which the Japanese fleet was defeated, was ended today following the refusal of a federal grand jury to indict the Chicago Tribune which printed the story June 7.

William D. Mitchell, New York attorney who was appointed special assistant by Attorney General Francis Biddle to present evidence to the grand jury, said after the "no-bill" was voted:

"The jury has considered the case fully and its conclusion that no violation of the law was disclosed settles the matter."

Also cleared by the jury's refusal to vote indictments were the New York News and the Washington Times-Herald, both of which printed the controversial story.

Among the witnesses heard were J. Loy Maloney, managing editor of the Tribune; Stanley Johnston, Tribune war correspondent, on whose information and suggestions the story was based; Wayne Thomis, Tribune aviation editor and rewrite man, who assisted in preparing the story; Ralph Sharp, night news editor of the New York News, and Frank Waldrop, political and foreign editor of the Washington Times-Herald.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Tribune, said after the jury's action:

"I never had the slightest fear of an indictment. I have known Maloney for nearly 25 years and when I confided the Tribune's honor to him, it was with a thorough knowledge of his character."

FARLEY, FDR GROUPS READY FOR SHOWDOWN ON GOVERNOR RACE

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Opposing forces behind contestants backed by President Roosevelt and James A. Farley for New York's Democratic gubernatorial nomination approached a fighting showdown today apparently oblivious to all moves for party harmony.

As nominating time neared there appeared little likelihood of a last minute withdrawal by either entry or an agreement on a compromise candidate, the only developments that could keep the issue off the floor of the Democratic state convention in Brooklyn.

State Chairman Farley clung to his prediction that "more than 670" of the 1,014 delegates would vote for his candidate—State Attorney John J. Bennett, jr.—and declared "we are not compromising."

Supporters of U. S. Senator James M. Mead, claiming more than the nomination requirement of 508 delegates for the president's choice, were equally determined to force the party's first convention roll call on a governorship nomination in 24 years. Previously, a nominee had geen agreed on at preliminary conference of party leaders.

The determination of both sides to fight it out persisted despite various efforts for party peace that have included recommendations by the president for a compromise, without mention of names, and advancement privately of alternate candidates by the Mead forces.

The Democratic nominee is expected to be opposed in the campaign by former District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, slated to be nominated by Republicans at their state convention opening next Monday at Saratoga Springs.

WICKARD ASKS DROPPING OF 'OVER PARITY'

Representative Challenges Secretary in Call For Ceilings.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A new battle over farm prices apepared in the making today following an appeal by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard for an amendment to the price control law to permit lower ceilings on agricultural products.

Wickard, reversing his previous position, urged farmers in a radio address last night to forego a provision in the price law prohibiting ceilings of less than 110 per cent of parity. (Parity prices are designed to give farm products purchasing power equivalent to that of a base period, usually 1909-14).

The secretary's new stand was challenged quickly by Chairman Fulmer (D., S. C.) of the house agriculture committee, who said:

"Friends of the farmers will oppose any such change in the price law. Mr. Wickard and Mr. Henderson (price administrator Leon Henderson) would do farmers, consumers and the nation a real service if they would do something about cutting down on the margins and profits that middlemen and others make on farm products."

In Chicago, Earl C. Smith, vice president of the American Farm Bureau federation, expressed doubt a plan for applying price ceilings to livestock could be devised.

At the same time, he added that farmers of the midwestern region most likely would not object to removal of the 110 per cent limitation and substituting for it a provision that would restrict the placing of any ceiling below that necessary to assure an average parity price return during the particular seasonal marketing period.

In urging its repeal, Wickard said the 110 per cent limitation was being used by many other groups "to prove that farmers are asking for more than their fair share." He asserted the struggle against inflation was endangered because of "unwillingness of each great economic group to accept controls unless at the same time controls are placed on others."

He called upon farmers to lead the way toward greater stability of prices by giving up the 110 per cent parity limitation. This would mean that the government could set ceiling prices at any level it might see fit from parity upward.

18,900 Civilians Get Commissions During 60 Days

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The war department has informed congress that 18,967 civilians with no previous experience as military officers were granted army commissions ranging from second lieutenant to colonel during the 60 days beginning June 1.

The navy has submitted a similar report for the same period but attaches of the house naval committee have declined to make it public in the absence of Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.)

Secretary of War Stimson wrote Vice President Wallace:

"It may be of interest to note that of the total number of appointments * * * approximately 10,000 or 53 per cent represent doctors and other members of the medical profession who were commissioned in the medical corps.

"Of the remainder many were appointed to perform administrative duties with the services and the air corps in positions not requiring general military training."

Red Hammon and the Mansfield Travelers have a challenge for the city champion Westinghouse softballers, a double-barrelled challenge, and the Westies can take or leave all or any part of it.

Here it is: a challenge for a game of softball and a game of baseball or either one.

"The Westies have some good baseball players in their lineup," says Red, "and we've got some good softball players in our lineup, and here's a chance for all of us to have some fun."

Bob Spear, the News-Journal's city tennis champion of last year, had a close call recently when he was transferred from primary training at Arcadia, Fla., to basic flight training at Greenville, Miss., in the Army Air corps.

Most of the men included in the transfer went to Greenville by a chartered bus which was struck by a passenger train en route, killing 14 and injuring 34.

Spear and Fred Rader of Mansfield, and Raders wife made the trip by automobile.

Rader and Spear have been together throughout their air corps service, in ground school, primary and basic training.

Reds Join Tribe In Long Slide

Ohio Teams Battle to Stay In First Division.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

IF OHIO baseball fans have any knack for solving puzzles, they might use their talent to find a reason for the sudden collapse of their two entries in the major leagues.

* * *

Not so many days ago the Cleveland Indians were runners-up in the American league and the Cincinnati Reds were skipping along in third place in the National loop.

But today the Indians and the Reds look as if they'll be extremely fortunate to finish in the first divisions.

Each team has lost nine of its last 11 games. The Reds have dropped into fourth place, only three games away from the second division. The Indians are clinging to third in the American league by four percentage points but will find themselves sharing that position if the St. Louis Brownies win today.

The Pittsburgh Pirates handed the Reds their sixth setback in a row yesterday and beat Paul Derringer in the bargain, 9-2. The drubbing left the Reds 5½ games behind the third-place New York Giants, who were idle.

The Detroit Tigers pasted the third straight loss on the Indians, 6-1, in a twilight game. Virgil Trucks pitched six-hit ball for the Tigers and had the help of a three-run homer by Rudy York which bounced Jim Bagby in the third inning and other round-tripper by Ned Harris.

* * *

Elsewhere in the American league, the Philadelphia Athletics shut out the Washington Senators, 8-0, in a night game and the Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader with the New York Yankees, Boston getting a 6-4 triumph in first game and New York a 2-1 decision in the second.

In the National league, the Brooklyn Dodgers crushed the Boston Braves, 11-1, but the St Louis Cardinals stayed 6½ games behind by walloping the Chicago Cubs, 5-1, in a night contest.

Lyons Ordered To Service

Diamond Career of Sox Veteran May Be Ended.

CHICAGO — (U P) — The mound career of Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox appeared near an end today.

The veteran of 20 American league campaigns hasn't lost his ability to fool opposing batsmen, but he faces a military call that likely will balk any hope of "another season" for him.

Lyons received an order to report to a draft board in his home town of Vinton, La., for a physical examination preparatory to induction into the army. He was unable to be in the southern town on the prescribed date and yesterday conferred with Chicago draft officials to determine whether arrangements can be made for the examination here.

Lyons said it was likely he would be permitted to finish the present baseball season regardless of the decision on his examination.

While awaiting word relative to his test, Lyons indicated he would investigate the various branches of service with an eye toward enlistment.

Lyons is 42 years old, unmarried and without dependents. His father, who lived with him during the off-seasons died recently.

Keep Your Eye on the Ball

With many feminine golfers at Ogden, Utah, adopting shorts instead of the conventional outfits, we might guess that this is one reason some masculine golfers are having more difficulty keeping their eye on the white pellet. Purses and employes wages will be paid in war bonds and stamps during the three days.

Tigers Chase Star Hurler

Bagby Has Sixth Loss of Season at Detroit.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Jim Bagby's reliable pitching suddenly went the way of the Indians' batting, and the Tribe came home today from its latest defeat with only a half-game hold on third place.

Bagby, with 13 victories, was pounded for five runs and eight hits before retiring with none out in the third inning yesterday, as the Detroit Tigers triumphed 6-1 in a twilight game.

* * *

It was Jim's sixth loss and the ninth in the last 11 contests for the Indians, dropping them within a half-game of the fourth-place St. Louis Browns, who were idle.

The Tigers plated their first run in the initial frame with three singles off Bagby, but the payoff came in the third as Rudy York cracked a three-run homer, his 19th of the season. Pinky Higgins walked and Ned Harris singled before Bagby was replaced by Tom Ferrick, and Detroit scored again in the third when Lou Boudreau threw wild in an attempt to get Higgins at the plate.

Ferrick allowed only one hit in five innings. After Ferrick was removed for a pinch hitter, Joe Heving took the mound in the eighth. Harris, the first batter to face him, clouted for the circuit and the Tigers' final run.

Cleveland's lone run came in the eighth.

The Indians play the Chicago White Sox here tomorrow night.

Nelson Takes Third Title

Ohio Open Crown Stays On Lord Byron's Brow.

By FRITZ HOWELL

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The Ohio Open golf crown remained on the sunburned brow of Toledo's "Lord Byron" Nelson today, the former National Open and P. G. A. champion winning it for the third consecutive year against the best professionals and amateurs the Buckeye realm could send against him.

Nelson carded a 273 for the 72 holes over Mayfield Country club's rugger terrain, 11 under par and five ahead of his nearest opponent, Herman Keiser of Akron. Nelson constructed his five-stroke edge on the first 36 holes, when he carded 63-69—132 against Keiser's 70-67—137, for they matched strokes on the final 36, with rounds of 69 and 72.

Thus Keiser found himself shooting six strokes under regulation figures — but still five strokes away from a tie for the title.

It was strictly a two-man fight, for third-place Al Espinosa of Akron, another three-time winner of the laurels who once tied for the National Open title, was 11 strokes back with 284.

* * *

Phil Perkins of Cleveland, the 1937 champ and former British amateur winner, was fourth with 292—two strokes ahead of Billy Burke of Cleveland, 1931 National Open king and winner of the state meet in 1938 and 1939.

Jimmy Thompson, Cleveland's former public links champion, led the amateur contingent with 302, a full 29 strokes off the championship pace and one stroke ahead of Val Chiaverini of Toledo, the state's newly-crowned "pay-as-you-play" ruler.

Al Kushin Shoots Three Under Par

Al Kushin banged out a round of three-under-par 33 to take medal honors in the Westinghouse golf league last evening at Possum Run. He had company in the sub-par regions, Pete Zeides and Phil Schwaner each getting 35, one under perfect figures.

West Virginia, Ohio Stars Meet

WHEELING, W. Va. — (U P) — The Ohio Valley all-star football classic between a team selected from eastern Ohio and a team representing West Virginia's panhandle, will be played tonight under the lights at Wheeling stadium. The Ohioans have been defeated in both games since the first contest in 1940.

Both the Ohio and West Virginia squads were selected by the popular vote of fans.

Coaches Gomer Jones of Martins Ferry and Myrill Kepner of St. Clairsville have been drilling the Ohioans.

"They're as good a collection of high school football players as I've seen on a gridiron in years," Jones said.

Coaches Bob Roe of Wheeling and Carl Hamill of Weirton have directed the West Virginia mountaineers, and they say the squad is "plenty snappy and ready to go."

The Ohio outfit will be co-captained by left tackle Groza of Martin Ferry and fullback Leonard of Tiltonville. The West Virginia squad will be captained by left tackle Lalich of Weirton.

Commission Hold Up Purse Of Cleveland Boxer Who Quit

Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce last night made a good honest effort to revive professional boxing in Mansfield, and found the fight fans in the mood to help out with the effort. And the main bout flopped dismally.

* * *

Suffering from nothing worse than a bloody nose, Carl Nestel, Cleveland featherweight, refused to leave his corner for the third round of the top bout against Mansfield's Paul Carbetta. Seems his ability as a fighter had been misrepresented to the J. A. C. matchmakers.

The Mansfield boxing commission immediately ordered Nestel's purse held up, and allowed him only expenses for the trip.

The main bout had started out fast enough, and in the first round gave promise of developing into an interesting fight. Toward the end of the round Nestel got his bloody nose.

Carbetta tagged the Clevelander several times in the second round and Nestel decided he didn't want any more of it.

It was the second purse held back by the commission. Lee Bridges, who stumbled and stayed down in the second round of the curtain raiser against John L. Frazier of Mansfield, also went home unpaid.

* * *

The surprisingly good crowd appeared to like the rest of the card, particularly the semi-final six rounder won by Lou Lamont of Elyria over Johnny Dawson of Cleveland.

Lamont packed too much punching power for the Clevelander, and the decision in his favor by the three judges was unanimous. But they went at a fast clip and Dawson was still in there swinging at the end.

It was the only decision the judges were called on to make. Substituting in the top four round preliminary, Johnny McCoy and Mike Branden, Elyria light heavyweights, put on an entertaining exhibition.

Speedy Stevens, Mt. Vernon 147-pounder, making his first start in a year and a half, knocked out Dan Matthews of Columbus in two minutes and five seconds of the third round.

* * *

Matthews, who fought Beauford Glover five times without being stopped, found himself outclassed by the veteran Stevens, and was down three times for counts of nine in the second round, before going out in the third on a short right uppercut to the chin.

* * *

Kenny Krupp, Mansfield high school football and basketball star of last school year, found the three-minute rounds of professional boxing too long for his inexperience, and was forced to quit in two and a half minutes of the third round against Herm Shocker, who won on a technical knockout.

Shocker was floored for no count just before the bell ending the first round.

Blues Falter In Title Race

Drop From First Place To Fourth in Week.

(By Associated Press)

The lot of being the first contender to show signs of faltering in the hot American association pennant race apparently falls to Kansas City.

In first place a week ago, the Blues today were in fourth, a fraction of a percentage point below Toledo. They have won only two of their last eight starts.

Their woes continued last night when they lost a doubleheader to Milwaukee, 1-0 and 7-1. It was the third straight setback at the hands of the Brewers, who advanced into second place, a game and a half behind pace setting Columbus, which lost to Toledo.

Toledo nosed out Columbus, 3-2 scoring all of its runs in the sixth inning on three hits, a sacrifice and an error. It was the 15th victory for Archie McKain. Toledo southpaw. Harry Brecheen, seeking his 18th triumph, drew his eighth loss of the season, instead.

At Indianapolis, Ray Poat had to go 13 innings before getting a 4 to 3 decision over Louisville. Rookie Rube Fischer stopped St Paul with five hits to give Minneapolis an 8 to 1 triumph.

Joust Enters Semi-Finals

Kovach Meets Kovack In Chicago Amateur Tourney.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— The Chicago National Amateur Golf championships entered the semi-final round today with Steve Kovach, Pittsburgh, paired with Frank Kovack, Bonnie Brook, Ill., and Make Stolarik, Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Ill., matched with Wilford Wehrle, Racine, Wis.

Kovach entered the semi-finals with victories over Jack Duers, Park Ridge, Ill., 3 and 2 and Art Doering, Chicago, and 1.

Wehrle, the only favored player remaining in the tourney, eliminated Louis Esposito, Chicago, 2 and 1, in a quarter-final round match yesterday. He had eliminated F. Ray Bowen, Park Ridge, Ill., 2-up earlier in the day.

* * *

Kovack advanced to the round of four at the expense of Bob Rosencrance, Stanford university and Manuel De La Torre, Northwestern university. He overcame Rosencrance in the morning round 3 and 2 and then polished off De La Torre in the afternoon 4 and 3.

Stolarik defeated Defending Champion Ray Billows, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in a 20-hole quarter-final round match. Earlier he eliminated Mike Bencriscutto, Racine, Wis., 5 and 4.

FAIR OR FOUL

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK — (INS) — At this time when names are being tossed about casually for the major leagues' most valuable player awards, I'd like to offer two players—two players alone without alternates for the plaques that will be passed out next winter. The two gents I have in mind seem to symbolize to me all that encompasses sportsmanship, ability and achievement day after day through tough baseball campaigns.

I offer you two men, and two only, viz:

* * *

Mel Ott, manager of the New York Giants.

Lou Boudreau, manager of the Cleveland Indians.

Strangely, neither will win a pennant. But both of them have that singular spark that makes them standouts and they have come into their own in tough spots both as players and managers to such an extent that they can't be overlooked in the balloting, and, as far as I am concerned, can't be overlooked in the final choice unless suddenly they veer away from the standard they have set so far.

Last year, Dolph Camilli was a standout in the National by virtue of the things he did for the Brooklyn Dodgers in their march toward the National league pennant, and Joe DiMaggio finally was selected over Ted Williams in the American.

Last year DiMaggio had hit in 56 straight games and had proved himself a thoroughly most valuable player in the American. Camilli had provided the punch that made the Dodgers pennant winners.

But this season neither of those clubs have anybody to offer, although they both probably will win their pennants again. Lou Boudreau has been a great ball player and a great leader all season at Cleveland. Mel Ott has been equally great with the Giants.

The most valuable player award generally goes to pennant-winners and that is only natural because pennant-winners more often than not have a standout star to offer, but not this time.

The Yankees seem to have the American league pennant sewed up and their standout man is Joe Gordon, yet you couldn't very well class him as the most valuable player in the league. Neither could you give Ted Williams that designation in view of his leadership in hitting home runs, etc., etc., for Williams hasn't yet caught on to the idea that in baseball every player is supposed to be a team man. Remember a few weeks ago when he was fined and benched for loafing and arguing with the fans?

Joe DiMaggio can be eliminated forthwith because he has been in a slump most of this season.

* * *

Boudreau has made the Indians snap out of it.

The same goes for Ott.

The New York Giants rapidly were disintegrating under the leadership of Bill Terry, who was a great ball player and a mediocre manager. Ott was elevated to managership of the club. And this season Ott has come along to be virtually assured of a third place finish when the second division seemed to be ordained.

Meantime, Boudreau and Ott have played great ball themselves to further inspire their teams and they seem to be a couple of gents who will measure up to exactly what the most valuable player awards means.

In any case, they're my guys for the most valuable player award and I'd like to see the tabulations giving it to somebody else.

ARMY RELIEF GETS GOLF TOURNEY CHECK

CHICAGO — (INS) — Army emergency relief today had a check for $14,197.47, the army's share of the profits from the 'Tam O'Shanter open and all-American amateur golf tournament played on the Tam O'Shanter course July 20 to 26.

The check represents 85 per cent of the net proceeds, according to George S. May, president of the club. The other 15 per cent or $2,505.43, will be turned over to the benevolent fund of the Professional Golfers' Association of America.

CHANGES JOBS

BUFFALO, N. Y. —(AP)— Eddie Shore, who piloted the Springfield (Mass.) Indians to an eastern division championship in the American Hockey league last season, will manage the Buffalo Bisons this year. Signing of the former Boston Bruin defense star as general manager and coach was announced by S. Edgar Danahy, president of the Buffalo team.

Halas Predicts Chicago Bears Will Be Stronger Than Ever

By H. C. WARREN

CHICAGO—(INS)—George Halas, owner and coach of the Chicago Bears, champions of the National Football league, served up some bitter medicine today for the other clubs in the pro circuit.

Halas, convalescing from a serious attack of influenza, gave out an announcement that would serve the same purpose of giving a sinking Jap a crowbar. Halas opined, in all seriousness, that "the Bear front line will be stronger this year than last."

* * *

The Chicago Bear line last season represented the "Seven Blocks of Granite," Fordham's historic wall, and the Seven Mules of Notre Dame from the days of the Four Horsemen, all rolled up into one line with several tons of reinforced concrete tossed in for good measure. If this year's Bear line is any stronger than last, the other teams in the National league don't want any part of it.

The Bears, like every other sports outfit, have lost several valuable players to the armed forces of the nation. Halas' linemen already lost are Ken Kavanaugh and Dick Plasman, ends; Al Baisi, guard; Joe Mihal, tackle, who are all in the army. Al Forte, a guard, is in the navy.

If the line has been hard hit, the Bear backfield has been riddled. Norman Standlee, former Stanford star and outstanding Bear fullback, is in the army; George (one-play-to-a-touchdown) McAfee, Bob Swisher and Joe Maniaci are in the navy, Bob Snyder has taken a backfield coaching job at Notre Dame.

Halas offers no consolation to Bear opponents in announcing plans for his new front line. Ed Kolman and Joe Stydahar will be back at left tackle while Lee Artoe and 265-pound John Federovitch, will take care of right tackle. As reserve tackle, the Bears have called up Dick Hempel from their Newark farm.

The center situation will be in good hands with Bulldog Turner and Al Matuza back. Halas expects to shift Bill Hughes to left guard as understudy to Dr. Danny Fortmann who will start the season at that spot and play until he receives a call from the army.

George Musso and Ray Bray are ready to carry on at right guard. Kavanaugh and Plasman will be badly missed at end, but Hampton Poole and George Wilson look capable of taking care of the right wing, and Johnny Siegal, with the help of Bob Nowaskey, will patrol the left end.

Connie Mack Berry, veteran end and prominent basketball player, has been picked by Halas for a utility role.

Sid Luckman, chief generator of the Bears' T formation machinery, will return to his old spot at quarterback, with Hugh Gallarneau and Roy Nolting operating from the right half position. Ray MacLean and Harry Clark are expected to resume where they left off at left half. At fullback, Bear fans can expect to see the familiar Bill Osmanski and Gary Famiglietti.

The owner of the Bears is extremely wary of naming names in the matter of last year's collegians who will be brought up for next season, but he admitted: "We'll have a few youngsters around during the course of the season."

Professional football, like baseball, will carry on this fall and like baseball with play a number of exhibition games in the interest of army and navy relief.

On professional football programs, Halas said:

"I like every other person engaged in professional sports, realize that these are uncertain times. It is impossible to predict what the coming season will bring, but right now we are making plans to carry on."

Halas, still pale and drawn from his ordeal in the hospital, plans to take active charge when he assembles his team on Aug. 8. The Bears are starting practice early to prepare for their game with the College All-Stars in Chicago's Soldier field the last week of August.

STAGG IMPRESSED

CHICAGO—(INS)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, 80-year-old gridiron coach, was of the opinion today that the all-star college football team is "remarkably far advanced in training" for its charity game with the Chicago Bears Aug. 28.

IOSPITAL USES KENNY METHOD FOR PARALYSIS

'eatment Devised 30 Years Ago In Australia Now In Use Here.

MADISON, Wis.—The famous nny treatment for infantile ralysis, recently introduced into United States from Australia, now administered in a special rd in the Orthopedic Division of Wisconsin General hospital.

The treatment was devised 30 ars ago in the Australian bush ntry by Sister Elizabeth Ken- (chief nurses are called "sister" the British.) It is not a cure- but it has been successful in a ge number of cases in prevent- permanent crippling as an er-effect of infantile paralysis. Water, heat, blankets and mas- ge comprise the formula that v spells hope to victims of the ad disease that refuses to di- ge its secret to students of hology. Treatment requires no borate equipment and the Wis- sin General hospital ingenious- has met its simple needs.

Two washing machines, fitted ith heating units, are used to eam and wring out blanket rips called "foments," which e applied to the victim's limbs. he steaming packs are renew- every two hours until the in subsides. Trained physio- erapists then massage the af- cted parts and encourage the tient to exercise the muscles. omplete recovery with no crip- ng or deformity often takes ace in four to six weeks.

or best results, the patient ut begin treatment within a rt time after diagnosis, prefer- ly within a few hours.

The major difference between Kenny treatment and the thods commonly used in Amer- n hospitals is that the former uires immediate use of the scles. There is no immobiliza- n period nor any use of splints races. The treatment is short- than older methods, and, ac- ding to a preliminary report by American Medical Association mittee, four out of five pa- nts who began treatment with- wo weeks after being stricken overed in from four to six eks with no traces of crippling. ister Kenny introduced the atment in the United States in 0 and has been assisted by the ional Foundation for Infantile alysis and the Minnesota Foun- on in establishing a training ter for American nurses at the versity of Minnesota.

With funds donated by the Man- ster family of Madison, the consin General hospital sent chief physiotherapist to the versity of Minnesota last win- for a three-months course un- sister Kenny.

Women Doctors Are Now Serving In British Army

LONDON —(INS)— For the first time in the history of the British army, women doctors are today serving in commissioned ranks with the Royal Medical corps.

To date, 130 women have been granted commissions and are serving with various army units in the field. Their pay and allowances are the same as male doctors, but their food rations and marriage allowances are smaller.

Their work consists chiefly of routine inspections, innoculations and vacinnation parades, barrack inspections and lecturing. Among their ranks are women who before the war were surgeons, physicians, anaesthetists, eye specialists and psychiatrists.

$1,036 PROFIT

School Cafeterias Served 276,881 Meals.

The cafeterias at Mansfield Senior high school and the city's two junior high schools showed a net profit of $1,036 and served 276,881 meals during the last school year, according to the annual report just submitted to the board of education by Mrs. Frances B. Hypes, manager of the cafeterias.

Receipts amounted to $45,927 and expenses totaled $44,890. Listed as expenditures were food purchases of $31,243 and $11,158 in salaries for employes.

The restaurants served an average of 1,577 meals per day during the school year at an average cost of 16.6 cents per meal

HAS FIRST NICKEL

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—(U.P.)—The first nickel paid by a passenger on the Berkshire Street Railway when the first streetcar made its initial run 40 years ago is owned by Walter S Dickie, Berkshire county register of deeds. Dickie, who then was motorman, substituted another nickel for the one paid him by the first passenger.

Carol and Lupescu See 'The Drunkard'

A performance of "The Drunkard" in Mexico City drew former King Carol of Rumania and his friend and companion, Madame Elena Lupescu, as guests. Judging from the photo above of the famous couple as they watched the melodrama, they enjoyed it. Carol is spending his exile in Mexico. The play was brought to Mexico by the American colony as a war benefit.

LOOK TO ARMY FOR PLAYERS

Sisler Feels Camps Will Replace Towns For Material.

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—George Sisler, commissioner of the Semi-Pro Baseball Congress, believes that after the war, major league teams will look to army camps rather than small towns for their material.

He said that early team entries already certified in the 48 state tournaments governed by the Congress show that nearly 50 per cent of the contestants will be service clubs, 30 per cent industrial teams and 20 per cent town nines. Previously most of the entries were in the "town" classification.

"A lot of young boys are learning how to play the game in the army camps," Sisler said. "Rosters of teams already certified show that only about one-fourth of the players are from the professional ranks. These veterans help the youngsters and as a result there will be many ball players produced in the camps for organized baseball or the future.

But he predicted a boom in "town" ball when the war is over because there will be a great many returning players who have acquired a taste for the game.

NELSON SET TO FORESTALL CUT

Expected To Issue 'Quickie' Priority Ratings To Aid Production.

in discussing statements from congressional and other sources that the war production board had mishandled its job.

Nelson denounced "loose talk" about wholesale plant shutdowns and flatly contradicted recent reports that as many as 1,000 plants might suffer slowdowns or shutdowns because of lack of steel, copper, aluminum and other materials.

"I can see the way ahead and we're going to come out on top," he said. "There'll be no more alibis. I'm sick of them."

Two reports current in Washington were believed to have nettled the production chief particularly. One was the oft-published theme that the army was ready to take over control of the wartime industrial economy if civilian authority faltered. The other was that Nelson was too lenient with his subordinates.

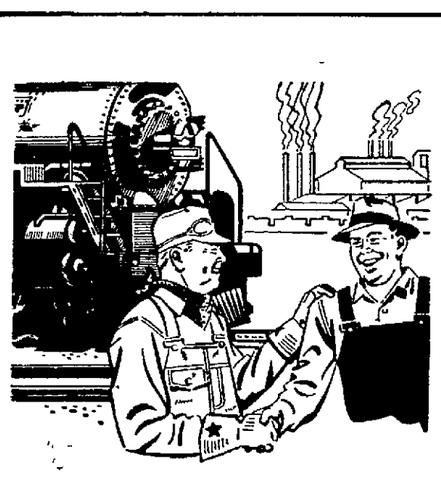
Watch for Junk Round-up Announcement Ad—Aug. 23



Industry and transportation heard you, MR. PRESIDENT

When you said to Congress, "Lost ground can always be regained; lost time never," we were listening, Mr. President . . . We in industry and transportation who have been working from the start to speed production and delivery of the goods which our fighting forces must have to regain that lost ground—to win through to final victory.

Serving the heart of Industrial America, 23,300 Erie men say to the men behind the machines, "Turn 'em out as fast as you can—and count on us to keep 'em rolling."

THE ERIE RAILROAD IS A LOCAL INDUSTRY

Unless the citizens of America respond at once, the war production program can bog down for lack of steel and other vital materials.

Even in peacetime, scrap provided about 50% of the raw material for steel.

It may be rusty, old "scrap" to you, but it is actually refined steel—with most impurities removed. In the steel mills this precious "scrap" is remelted with pig iron to produce the steel which goes into our machines of war.

Many steel furnaces are working from hand to mouth. Others are faced with shutting down. All need great mountains of reserve scrap to see them through the fall and winter months.

Steel production has gone up . . . up . . . UP! America is now producing as much steel as all the rest of the world combined. But unless at least 6,000,000 additional tons of scrap steel is uncovered promptly, the full rate of production cannot be attained or increased; all the tanks, guns and ships our country is counting on cannot be produced.

We can be thankful that there is enough Scrap in this country to see us through—Scrap a once wasteful nation is turning to in time of stress. It all depends on you to collect it and turn it in.

It is the greatest "Treasure Hunt" in history. Appoint yourself a committee of one to search your attic, your basement and your garage, your barnyard, your factory or your store.

Then give your pile to a charity or collection agency—or sell it to a Junk dealer. The Junk which you collect is bought by industry from scrap dealers at established, government-controlled prices.

Throw YOUR scrap into the fight!

HOW TO TURN IT IN—Sell it to a Junk dealer . . . Give it to a charity . . . Take it yourself to nearest collection point . . . or consult your Local Salvage Committee . . . If you live on a farm, phone or write your County War Board, or consult your farm implement dealer.

DRAFT BELLS

Old Dinner Gongs Will Be Used For Air-Raid Warnings.

LE ROY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The tolling of old-fashioned dinner bells on farms throughout the LeRoy township soon may take on a more solemn tone as they become a major link in the air raid and emergency warning systems.

Coordinator Floyd F. Johnston says that extra bells will be distributed to strategic points to complete the warning system originating through telephoned orders to key farm homes.

PROFIT TAKING STALLS UPWARD MARKET SWING

Steel Production Breaks All Records But Profits Fall on Higher Overhead.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Further profit taking stalled the stock market's recovery swing today although leading issues gave ground reluctantly and scattered advances were seen in early dealings.

On the offside fractions at a quiet opening were Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast line, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and Phillips Petroleum. Plus marks were attached to Sears Roebuck, American Telephone and Homestake Mining.

Steels had to contend with the compilation of the American Iron & Steel Institute indicating that, while production in this field during the first half of 1942 broke all records in the United States, net earnings for the principal companies for the period dropped to a figure well below that for any six months since 1939. Mounting wages, taxes and other cosats accounted for the discrepancy.

Helpful was the Dun & Bradstreet summary disclosing that bank clearings in 23 cities for the week ended Wednesday, bolstered by increased mid-month payments, topped the preceding week by 10.1 per cent and exceeded the comparable week last year by 16.9 per cent.
